THE CANINE HUMORIST

Dog That's Laughed at—and That Laughs

DACHSHUND STORIES

Although he may not be the smallest, the Dachshund, for his size, is most certainly the longest dog in the world.

It is not generally known, however, that the Dachshund, whose appearance is often the cause of mirth among those who do not know him very well, has, perhaps, a more highly-developed sense of humour than any other breed.

The famous writer, George Meredith, had a Dachshund called Islet, who came from Sir Fitzharding Maxse's kennels at Hellogland, then a British possession. When Islet died, Meredith wrote an epitaph in verse on this "waggling humorist." This was not just poetic licence, for Meredith and Islet treated each other as equals, and shared jokes together. The dog would often enter the room laughing and showing all his teeth, with eyes sparkling with fun, and if by chance Meredith took no notice, the dog would rap on the coat-scrutcher with his paw—and continue rapping until attention was paid to him.

The present-day Dachshund fully maintains his predecessors' reputation for fun-making, and many are the stories told of the Dachshund's determination to enjoy himself even in the most unpromising situations.

A famous Dachshund breeder tells the story of a dog he owned, who was extremely fond of retrieving stones thrown by anyone who would take on the job. The usual procedure was for the dog to find a stone, and with an appealing look in his eye and persuasive little noises in his throat, lay it at the feet of someone—preferably a complete stranger. On one occasion a rather serious fire broke out in the village, and when the fire was at its height the dog was seen to go up to the fire and pattering captain of the fire brigade, and then there invited him to participate in a little game of stone-throwing.

While on the subject of humour in dogs, the secretary of the National Canine Defence League, whose clinics handle over 70,000 sick animals every year, says that it is extraordinary how quickly ailing dogs brighten up as soon as they realise that treatment is being given them—and often they will pay visits of courtesy to the clinics on their own account, showing every sign of appreciation and pleasure, for some time after they have been made fit and well again.

THE "POM" AND THE COLLIE.
One little dog whose appearance belies its real character is the Pomeranian—which, although it may not look it, is a tough little animal.

The "Pom" is one of the little dogs that form the canine stock-in-trade of the cartoonist. When a picture of a dog is needed as one of the accessories of pampered luxury, the Pom is often chosen as the model.

Then authentic Pomeranian is far removed from the Pom of the comic pictures. Despite the fact that show specimens of to-day average about 4 lbs. in weight they are real dogs in every sense of the word. It was a representative of the breed who recently fell 700 feet over the Spitzkogel in the Austrian Alps, and remained in a ravine for 30 hours until rescued by a hunter who was lowered by a rope. The dog was unharmed by the fall and exposure. The breed is extraordinarily hardy, and it is quite common for a litter of puppies a few days old to be installed in outdoor, unwarmed kennels in winter with their mother, and suffer no harm. In fact they seem to thrive on this sort of thing.

The Pom is a really tough little dog.

The Collie or sheep-dog is, to some discerning eyes, the comeliest

WHEN SERVING SALADS

The average salad consists of lettuce leaves, slices of tomatoes, and chopped spring onions. There may or may not be—probably not—sliced hard-boiled eggs.

Sometimes the lettuce is chopped and then, if it is left for any length of time, it quickly turns black. There are lots more things that may be added to a salad than just these ingredients.

For instance, you may like cucumber and radishes, or beetroot, or cold cooked vegetables, such as peas, beans, carrots or potatoes cut into dice. Experiment with your salads; blend vegetables cooked and raw together, and try different kinds of dressings. Mix fruit and vegetables together, such as grapefruit and lettuce and chopped nuts. Serve salads combined with cold cooked fish other than salmon.

Try sardine salad, or salad with cream cheese, or chicken mayonnaise. Whatever you do, see that your salad ingredients are really cold, the lettuce, etc., perfectly crisp. If you have a gas-operated refrigerator you will not need to be told how easy it is to keep your vegetables, etc., beautifully fresh for days.

BANDITS' DODGE

"Your Money—And Your Trousers"

Bandits in Canada now force bank clerks to surrender not only money—but their trousers as well.

Over 2,500 dollars worth of jewellery was stolen from a man in a jewellery store at Montreal by this method.

of dogs. The variety that has outstripped all the others in popularity is, of course, the Rough Coated Collie, but the others have their adherents. In addition to the Smooth variety there are the Border and the "Beardie" who, although they have never figured on the show bench, are dogs of charm, and the Beardie Collie has achieved the distinction of having a famous novel with himself as the hero—none other than Alfred Ollivant's "Owd Bob."

TECHNIQUE OF LIVING

BERNARD SHAW ON HYPOCRISY

Mr. Bernard Shaw criticized English hypocrisy when he presided at a lecture given by Madame Levinskaya, the pianist, at the New Health Summer School at Malvern.

Commenting on Madame Levinskaya's address, which was "A New Technique of Living," Mr. Shaw said: "That does not concern me very much, because, as I am in my 79th year, it is rather late for me to get a new technique of living. I would have to acquire a new life before that would have any effect for me."

"But I would like to know how I should have lived. I am fairly convinced that I have not always been successful in finding out the right path, and, although it is too late, really, I should like to know what I ought to have done. There is still time for me to find salvation."

MAKES PEOPLE AWKWARD.

"In all questions of this kind you have to consider the physical fact that in English society everybody has grown up on hypocrisy. That is what makes people so extremely awkward in many ways. It is not a mere physical awkwardness; but very few people know how to behave nicely and tactfully and get through life."

"The reason is owing to this general demand for hypocrisy. If you are a female you are taught to behave like a lady, and you know perfectly well you are not a lady, but merely a human being. And if you are a man you are taught not to be a man, but a gentleman. There is a very great difference between an ordinary human and a gentleman."

"I have long been convinced that the notion that the brain is in your head is a complete mistake. I have known men who have brains in their fingers and none in their heads whatever, in the ordinary sense. You often find an extraordinarily clever and inventive mechanic who, if you asked him to describe what he does, is pitifully helpless. A brain is a thing that is all over you. A football player's brains are in his shins or in his toes."

BASIS OF NEW TECHNIQUE.

Madame Levinskaya said that the basis of her new technique of living was to teach people how to co-ordinate their muscular actions with their brain. "So few people," she said, "have any sort of co-ordination in their ordinary everyday actions. I once told a well-known doctor that 90 per cent. of the English people have no co-ordination. He replied, 'I entirely disagree. Ninety-eight per cent. have no co-ordination.'"

Madame Levinskaya said that if one sat on a sensible promenade and watched people going by, one would be impressed by the awkward way most people walked. "Many men walk either too stiffly or with a slouch, while most women walk either with a mincing little step or with a sort of coquettish swagger."

"Most of this failure to co-ordinate is due to our faulty educational system. Children are never taught how to co-ordinate mind and muscle, and many of them learn bad habits when they are first taught to write. Many of them sit in a cramped position, with their arms unnaturally contorted, and usually with their tongues sticking out."

TRAINING OF CHILDREN

Finger-Sucking Habit

A young mother wants to know what she'll do about four thumbs. Two belong to the baby and two to young Elizabeth, aged nearly three. These thumbs have a habit of getting thoroughly "messaged" in their small owners' mouths. At least the baby's do. Elizabeth's only when she goes to sleep.

"My book," says this mother, "tells me to pin the baby's night-gown sleeves down over his hands, or to put on small mittens. How can I do that in this weather? He doesn't wear a nightgown or a dress and I haven't the heart to put things on his hands."

There is no quick or magic cure for thumb-sucking.

FORMED EARLY.

It is true, however, that the habit is formed in early babyhood and this is the time patiently and persistently to discourage it as far as possible.

"Discouragers," as her book says, are all right, that is, taking means to keep the hands away from the face by lessening repeated gestures. Using long sleeves or mittens is recommended. Indeed it is advocated by the very best counsellors.

But there are times, as in summer, when it is almost impossible to do this. And besides mothers are busy.

Other "discouragers" then must be tried. Hands that are busy won't seek the mouth. Even a little baby's hands can be occupied by safe toys, rattles, little rubber dolls, and such things. Also he won't be so likely to suck his fingers if he is interested in people or things moving about him. It is the lonely baby in the lonely cradle or cart or play pen with nothing to do but lie or sit, who is going to seek companionship in his thumb.

MAY GROW OUT OF IT.

Of course, when he is very little he will sleep most of the time. By the time he gets over this sleepy stage he will be old enough to play with tiny toys and also to be interested in affairs about him. If this baby continues to put his thumb in his mouth just before he goes off for nap, I should not worry. The sky won't fall. Lots of babies do it and get over it and although it isn't a very admirable habit for a child to grow up to, few do grow up to it. The idea of breaking the baby is to prevent the habit from clinging.

No one wants a great big child looking dumb and queer standing about with his thumb where his tongue ought to be.

KEEP HANDS OCCUPIED.

Elizabeth is at the getting-over-it stage. She really should be over it—but, well, she isn't yet. The cure can be hurried by giving her something to play with at bedtime. She can't be smacked or shocked out of it. The danger here is in setting the habit by calling attention to it, or by diverting the habit into less admirable habits. Habits are peculiar. Drastic methods are seldom successful. One mother made her child look in the glass every time. It might work with some children.

Something to do.—This is the great secret of cure. Tired enough at bedtime to go right to sleep and to avoid loneliness during the day. The very busy child has very few bad habits as a rule.

The desperate charge of these Austrian troops shows how the last stronghold of the recent Nazi uprising was stormed and taken. The scene was the railroad station at Lavamund, to which the Nazi storm troops had retreated.

BOY MEMBER OF "CRIME CLUB"

Hanged After Reading Sensational Books

At an inquest at Dover on the body of Samuel George Alfred McGhie, 16 of Clarendon Street, Dover, it was found that the lad, who was stated hanging, was a member of a "crime club" attached to a library from which he borrowed books.

Police-constable Horn said that McGhie's 11-year-old sister told him that her brother was behind the cupboard door in his bedroom. The witness found the boy hanging with a piece of thin rope round his neck, one end being fastened over the top of the door and held by the door, which stopped it from slipping. In the living room he found a novel about nightmares.

Inspector R. E. Pay, of the Dover police, stated that he had examined the book and read a story. This told of ghost stories, and ended by the occupier of the house hanging himself. Another story told of a case of an untimely death.

The witness added that he found that the boy was a member of what was known as a "crime club" attached to a library from which the boy had a book a week. There were indentations on the top of the cupboard door, suggesting that experiments had been made as to what weight a rope would carry and its effect on the experimenter. The books with which the boy had been filling his mind confirmed his (the inspector's) theory that he had been experimenting, and the conditions suggested sudden impulse rather than premeditation.

Dr. H. Stevens said that the inspector's theory was borne out by his own examination. He had attended McGhie for small ailments, and found him a normal, healthy, nice lad.

Edmund Horace Marsh, manager of the grocery stores where McGhie worked as an assistant, said that he was one of the smartest lads he had.

The Deputy Coroner (Mr. R. E. Palm) said that the boy was apparently obsessed with the books he had read, and particularly with the incident of the man hanging himself. He had possibly tried to experiment on the same lines. The jury might have some observations to make for the public good as to the too-easy way in which boys could get hold of the type of books referred to.

The jury returned a verdict of "Death by Misadventure." They added a rider advising young people to refrain from reading such types of novel, and appealing to parents to restrain their children from reading such books into their homes.

40 HOURS WEEK NO CURE

Opposed by League of Industry

WOMEN'S RIGHT

Such is the conclusion of a committee appointed by the League of Industry to investigate schemes for the encouragement of employment. The report, which is to be presented to the Malvern Conference of the League in September, states that the replies to a questionnaire addressed to federations and branches of the League throughout the country proved that there was no general demand for a reduction of the working week as a means of spreading employment.

In all replies from branches where members were engaged in production for export it was emphatically stated that the increased cost per unit of output, due to a reduction in the working week without reduction of wages, could not be recovered in prices, and any attempt to recover it would lose the market and cause unemployment.

With regard to other proposals for bringing unemployed into work, the Committee reject the suggestion that workers over 65 or 60 should be compulsorily evicted from industry in order that their places may be filled by workers under these ages. To be fair to such workers the inducement to withdraw, by way of pensions, would have to be fairly close up to the wages which they could earn, and the cost would be far beyond the capacity of industry to carry under present circumstances.

The proposal that pensioners should not be allowed to be employed in industry is also rejected, with the proviso that it is undesirable that a pensioner should have a job for which a non-pensioner is equally fitted, mainly because his pension enables him to accept a lower wage.

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY.

The general eviction of women from industry in order to replace them by men is not favourably received by the Committee. "It is an impossible inconsistency," the Committee report, "to say that women are capable of taking part in the Government of the country, but are not capable of taking part in its economic life as industrial workers. It is easy to say that a woman's place is in the home, but there are, unfortunately, far more spinsters of a marriageable age than there are bachelors to marry them."

The Committee, however, recommend the raising of the school leaving age to 15.

The only field in which the Committee support any large increase in Government-directed activities is in respect of housing and slum clearance.

The Committee deny that technological improvements create unemployment. "Improved processes," they say, "do not in the long run cause less employment, but create more."

The Committee recommend that "when and where a competent group of expert industrialists can give full proof that they can undertake what, having regard solely to business considerations, are likely to be profitable extensions of existing works or the profitable establishment of new works, the bringing together of idle capital and idle labour is a task in which the Government could and should take its part."

Expressing approval of the policy of the Government in relation to the building of the Cunarder 534, the committee contend that one of the things which the Government can do is to raise money on the lowest possible terms.

They hold the view that if similar cases arise the precedent of 534 should be followed.

ST. PAUL'S IN ITS OLD GLORY

Interior Of Dome Being Restored

A new grandeur has come to St. Paul's.

The work of cleaning the inside of the great dome is rapidly nearing completion.

Already the interior of the cathedral seems transformed; when the last of the ugly tubular scaffolding is removed the vast cupola will be revealed in all its pristine whiteness.

The dust and grime which have percolated into the building and contaminated the white stonework of the dome throughout two centuries have been removed.

The faded gilding at the base of the pilasters around the Whispering Gallery and the dulled background of the niches in which stone saints stand have been restored to their former glory with gold-leaf.

Canon Alexander, treasurer of St. Paul's, who has been so largely the driving force behind the restoration and rebuilding of the cathedral during the past few years, told a Daily Mail reporter:

BEAUTY OF WREN'S DAY.

"The renovation of the nave and the transepts, already carried out, worked wonders, but with the dome restored to its old-time whiteness the cathedral will resume the beauty and magnificence of Sir Christopher Wren's day."

"Attempts were made in the past to redecorate the dome, but they succeeded only in leaving ugly patches beside the newness. It took modern methods to remove all the traces of the dirt and gases which have blackened the stone."

The topmost section of the dome bears fine frescoes of the life of St. Paul, wrought at the time of Wren by Sir James Thornhill, but long since blackened.

"Attempts to renew these pictures in the past were unsuccessful," said Canon Alexander. "We experimented with a newly devised method some weeks ago and, it having proved satisfactory, the final work on the dome, the restoration of Thornhill's work to its original state, will begin this month."

The dome is expected to be finally restored by October.

HELLO, JAPAN!

PHONE LINK WITH LONDON

London, Sept. 10.

When the final telephonic link between Britain and Japan is completed within the next few weeks, London will be able to claim the distinction of being the world's chief "Hello centre". It will then be possible for King George's subjects ring up the international exchange in London and ask to be put through to any one of 33 million out of the 35 million telephone subscribers in the world.

In fact, the only countries equipped with telephone systems with which there will be no direct connection will be China and Albania. The British Post office authorities are already experimenting over the possibility of connecting up London and Peking in the near future. They believe there are no serious technical difficulties to hinder this as they were able to speak with a cruising liner in the harbour at Shanghai recently.

Attempts have also been made to bring Albania into the international telephone family, though so far without success.

LONDON'S ROLE.

London's "hello girls" at the international exchange are responsible for putting through not only all the calls from Great Britain but in addition every call from continental Europe to North and South America, Asia, Australia and South Africa. Every time Cape Town rings up Cairo, Bombay or New York it has to put in the call through London.

Before the war the only countries with which Great Britain had telephonic communication were France and Belgium, with an erratic service to Sweden.

Owing to the immense volume of calls cleared through London daily and nightly there is a staff of 200 operators at the international telephone exchange at Carter Lane, in London. All the operators speak fluent French and German, the international telephonic languages of the Continent. Some speak several other languages as well.

SURGERY HERO'S POST

Gave Miner An Artificial Windpipe

Mr. G. Grey Turner, Professor of Surgery in the University of Durham, has been appointed to the University Chair of Surgery (British Post-Graduate Medical School), at London University.

It was Professor Turner who last year achieved a surgical marvel by saving the life of a miner suffering from a cancer growth in the windpipe.

An operation was performed and the man's windpipe removed.

Dr. Turner constructed a tube through which food could pass from the skin of the chest. By plastic operations this tube was first connected with the upper end of the gullet through a hole in the neck, and secondly with the stomach.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

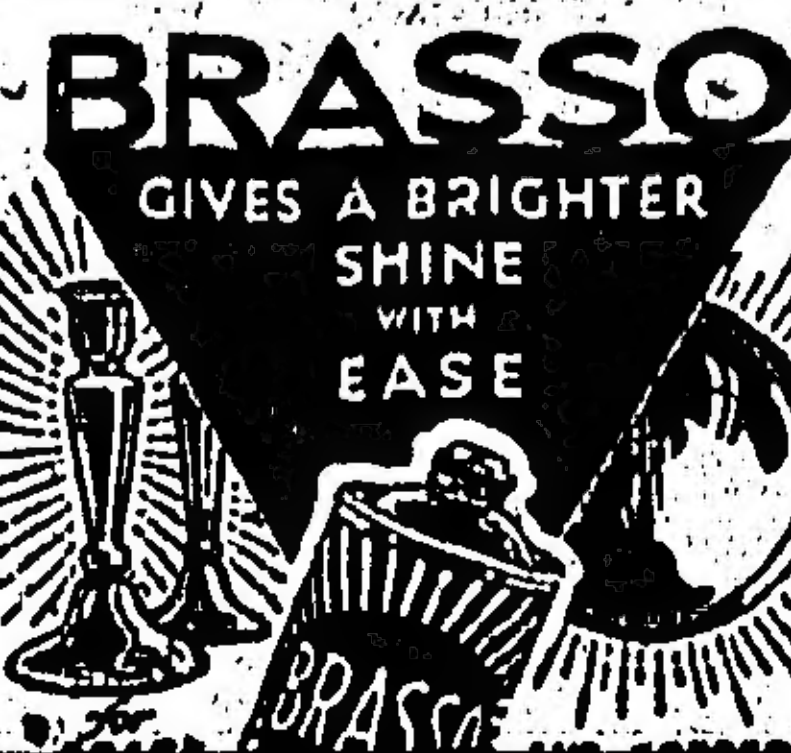

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

"A whole revue in a single number." Such is the amazing goal attained in the staging of a single sequence in "Hollywood Party," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular extravaganza which is coming on Sunday to the Queen's Theatre on Sunday. This number is the "Hello" number, depicting the welcome of the stars of Hollywood to "Baron Munchausen," distinguished guest. An immense glass and cellophane setting is used, fantastic music, dance ensembles, choruses, travesties, all are woven into a single number so that almost every bar of music presents some new piece of entertainment. A singing chorus of African chiefs, a burlesque tango by Jimmy Durante and his cast, a different comedy routine, beautiful ballet girls, the entrance of a giant gorilla—and music ranging from modernistic to grand opera are all woven into this concentration of entertainment. This is but one of many surprises in the new picture, in which Polly Moran and Douglas Montgomery star in a musical romance, a lion tamer, a great social function, Laurel and Hardy appear in a screaming comedy sequence, with Lope Velez, and other such incidents and a brilliant central story which in itself is dramatic and logical. The screen play of "Hollywood Party" is the work of Howard Dietz and Arthur Kober. The songs were written by Rodgers and Hart, Brown and Freed, and Donaldson and Kahn. In the cast are: Laurel and Hardy, Jimmy Durante, Charles Butterworth, Polly Moran, Lope Velez, Frances Williams, Jack Pearl, Eddie Quillan, June Clyde, George Givot, Richard Carle and Ted Healy and his Stooges. By a unique device Mickey Mouse, the cartoon, actually appears with human players.

"The Ninth Guest," Columbia production opening to-day at The Alhambra Theatre, presents a formidable array of histrionic talent in the ten principal roles of the production. The screen play is a brilliant adaptation of the very successful New York stage production of the same time which ran for two years at the Vanderbilt Theatre on Broadway. Eight persons are summoned by a mysterious telegram to attend a party in a penthouse high above the city. When they are gathered, a voice from the radio announces that they are all to meet death. Each of the guests suspects the other of being the arch fiend and five of them die before the real murderer is known. It is only when the madman attempts to separate two lovers that he reveals his Waterloo. Because the eight persons are on the screen all of the time after they are assembled in the penthouse and because each plays the role of a possible suspect and because each of the roles is a highly dramatic one, it is necessary to assemble a cast of exceptionally good players. Donald Cook, popular young star, was cast in the principal role with Genevieve Tobin sharing the honours with him. Next in importance is the role played by Hardie Albright, that of a young college professor. Mildred Walker has been cast as a society matron, with Helen Flint as the young and unscrupulous woman attorney. Edward Ellis was chosen for the role of Cronin, the scheming politician, with Edwin Maxwell as the multi-millionaire with political ambitions.

"Springtime For Henry," Otto Kruger may be a heart throb to the ladies but he is just a little bit too rough to suit Billy Jones. Bill knows, for Kruger failed to realize his own strength in a fight sequence for "Springtime For Henry" and enlisted him through a big window. The victim landed on his midsection on the sidewalk outside the window with no injuries other than a scratch on the bridge of his nose and another on his forehead. The Jesse L. Lasky company was engaged in making a scene in an evocative mission which results in a free-for-all fight with Otto Kruger and Nancy Carroll in the midst of the fighting. Kruger and Jones were nominated as sparring partners for the sequence by Director Frank Tuttle and the camera was set up to photograph their action through the window. Jones won an unexpected close up when he went through the window to land almost in the very lens of the camera. The picture is now playing at the King's Theatre.

"Little Man, What Now?" The improvidence of youth, and the struggle of a young couple against dire poverty, form the basis for the story of "Little Man, What Now?" Frank Borzage's Universal drama which comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday starring Margaret Sullivan who is supported by Douglas Montgomery. Married almost entirely without savings, the youngsters struggle along on the bare pittance which the boy earns as a clerk, only to have their income cease entirely when he loses his job. Many disastrous adventures ensue, but finally the young husband obtains another clerkship in a department store, and the future looks brighter in spite of his meagre salary. On the first pay day, however, he spends almost his entire month's wages on a single beautiful dressing table for his wife, simply because she has admired it in a furniture store window, and they again find themselves without funds. Approaching motherhood confronts the young wife, but months before the happy event the husband again loses his position. The situation becomes desperate. But Hans and Laemmle, in spite of their worries, lose neither hope nor happiness. They are young and they have each other. And eventually they come upon a solution of their problems. The New Deal is coming their way, too. In theme and treatment, "Little Man, What Now?" is said to be strongly reminiscent of "Seventh Heaven," Borzage's production of the silent days which still remains one of the outstanding classics of the screen. Appearing in support of Miss Sullivan and Montgomery are many such popular players as Alan Hale, Hedda Hopper, George Meeker, Mae Marsh, DeWitt Jennings, Sarah Padden, Fred Kohler and Muriel Kirkland.

THE BUDGET

Public reaction to the Colony's
Budget will probably be that the Government has erred, if at all,
on the side of caution. At the same time, with conditions as they are to-day, there will most likely be a general disposition to agree that it is far better to take
the safe course than to embark
on a policy of adventure. An analysis of the Colonial Secretary's speech makes it clear that,
whilst following a cautious line,
the Government has refused to be stamped into rash economies. First impressions, when the total sum asked for was disclosed, were that a decrease of
some seven million dollars in
expenditure was contemplated;
actually, however, the outgoings
are only a few lakhs less than
those originally estimated for
the current year. The confusion
was created by the fact that the Government did not, as is customary, release with the Budget resolution the Bill setting
forth details of the appropriations. These would have disclosed the fact that the amount
of $26,000,000 did not include
any provision for Military Contribution or charges on account
of Public Debt. Taken in the main, the Budget can be described as somewhat colourless, since
no new works of any large
dimensions are to be undertaken,
whilst some undertakings which
are patently necessary, but scarcely urgent, have to await
the dawn of better times. The Government policy in this connection is hardly open to serious
criticism, and it is at any rate
to the credit of the authorities
that they are disposed at the
moment to utilise some of the spare funds in the direction of effecting much-needed, if only partial, expansion of the Colony's
health and medical services
rather than to increase what
may be termed the ordinary
amenities of life. It is gratifying to see that the Trade School
project is to be taken in hand,
since it should prove one of the
most beneficial institutions in the Colony. In this connection,
a tribute is due to the Building Contractors' Association for agreeing to erect the
building at cost, thus saving the Government a considerable sum.
Regret will be felt that no provision is to be made for the
greatly-needed Mental Hospital.
As is known, the site originally prepared for the Central British
School was alienated for the purpose of the asylum. Not only, however, has it not so far

NOTES OF THE DAY

RUSSIA AND I.L.O.

An interesting problem is likely
to arise if the difficulties at Geneva
are overcome and Russia becomes a member of the League of Nations.
Membership of the League carries
with it automatically membership
of the League's International Labour Organisation. It is possible for a country to join the
I.L.O. without joining the League
—which is the reason why it was possible to invite the United States of America to join—but it
is not possible for a country to join
the League without being a member of the I.L.O. The composition
of the Conference and Governing Body of the I.L.O. differs radically
from that of the Assembly and Council. In the latter, of course,
there are only Government delegates, but in the former there are
employers' and workers' delegates
as well. That is Russia's little problem.

INTERESTING ISSUE.

What will the Workers' Republic
decide to do about this difficult
and delicate matter? There are no employers in Russia as we understand the term. There are Trade Unions which could be invited to send representatives and,
of course, the Government can send delegates. Theoretically there is no distinction between the workers' and the Government delegates as
the Government is composed of
members chosen from the workers'
Soviets or Councils. If Russia did
not wish to admit of any distinction between the workers' and the Government it could appoint either
only a Government delegate or only a workers' delegate. Or alternatively, it could overcome the difficulty by retaining a 'sleeping
member' of the Organisation and
sending no representatives at all.

GENEVA IMBROGLIO

Unfortunately, Mr. de Valera's
surprise attack at Geneva has
accomplished its purpose only too
well and the question now is whether the U.S.S.R. will become a member of the League at all.
The loss will be incalculable if Mr.
Litvinoff disappears in umbrage
and with everybody's nerves so
sensitive this is not an unlikely
happening. The irony of the imbroglio lies in the fact that it
arose out of a procedure designed
to prevent a last-minute snag.
The Powers laid themselves open
to the attack by trying to wriggle
the invitation through after secret
conferences on the best method of
working the "wangle." At least that is how Mr. de Valera saw the
situation, and doubtless his views
are widely shared. Nevertheless,
the Irish Free State delegate's
chief disservice was to draw a red herring across the trail. A solution may be found if the Assembly
make up their minds whether Russia's entry into the League is desirable or not, and if they are
agreed that it is, to accept Sir
John Simon's dictum that the
quickest way is the best.

expenditure and delay have in consequence been incurred in respect of the school. The continued holding up of the Mental Hospital scheme illustrates the
point that the diversion of the
school site from its original purpose was never justified. Coming to the financial aspect of the Budget, the position disclosed
cannot be described as in any sense giving cause for pessimism.
It is true that the credit balance at the end of the year is likely to decline to just over
twelve and a half millions, and
that there are anticipations of a
further reduction to $10,700,000
by the end of 1935. But this is largely explained by the fact that the Government is not hesitating to make use of some of its surplus funds—a policy which we think might have been carried even a little further without serious danger to the Colony's finances. In this connection it must be remembered that the Government is basing
the Budget on a 1s. 4d. dollar,
and although it is quite within
the realms of possibility that
present exchange rates may
decline, there is also the other
possibility that they may keep
well above the level named, in
which event considerable savings on sterling commitments
will be experienced. Whilst further analysis of the Budget
may disclose details in which
the Government plans might
have been improved upon, in the
main the principles upon which they are based call for little
serious adverse comment.
Whilst marking time for the
moment, the Colony is being administered on lines which
should permit of a ready response to the first sign of better
conditions.

WILL JAPAN START A NAVAL RACE?

By CAPT. DUDLEY W. KNOX

WILL Japan's expanding am-
bitions unravel the fabric of
naval limitation already woven?
That is a question which must be
answered within the next year,
when the existing treaties fixing
the upper limits of navies for America, Britain and Japan, and
in part for France and Italy, are scheduled for renewal or revision
by an international conference.

At least in principle, the United States and Great Britain stand together in their attitude toward
future naval limitation. They believe in a renewal of the main
features of the existing treaties,
and any substantial difference of viewpoint is confined to compari-tively incidental questions. How each nation's naval pile is to be cut
is a small matter contrasted with
the fundamental demand which Nippon's spokesmen have advanced
of increasing the size of her whole
navy relative to the other countries.

Japanese officials have freely
announced that nothing less than
parity with the strongest naval powers would be acceptable to
them in the future. Reduced to cold figures, this would mean an increase of more than 50 per cent
Navy, while Britain and America
stood still.

Is Japan's participation in naval
limitation worth such a price, or
even worth any material rise in
her relative position? Would it
be better to accept the risk of her
unrestrained building, and to meet it on a competitive basis until
her state of mind is less excited?
Until then, would it be wiser to
postpone the limitation conference
rather than face almost certain
disagreement now, together with
the consequent ill-feeling? Such
is the puzzle which disturbs official
Washington and London today,
and which provides the motive for
the preparatory conversations now
being held in the hope of narrow-
ing the margin of difference to a point where final agreement will
be reasonably indicated.

Japan already has been very generously dealt with in naval conferences. The security of her home waters, including her vital
communications with the Asiatic
mainland, was amply assured by
the Washington Treaty of 1922.
Then at the London Conference of 1930 she succeeded in gaining an increase of nearly 8 per cent in
her assigned proportion of tonnage.

At the new conference, scheduled for 1935, she will come with
a distinct bargaining advantage
flowing from the possession of a completely built-up "Treaty Navy,"
compared with a substantial
American deficiency in this respect. On the other hand, England
will also have a navy of full treaty
strength, according to recent
official declaration in Parliament,
and Japan's case for increased
tonnage relative to Britain will therefore not be good. A further element of great importance, tending to turn Britain against any Japanese naval increase, is the current commercial rivalry between these two countries. Herein may lie a refuge for the United States. Since parity of navies between America and Britain is

conceded, if Japan fails to gain
relatively to England she cannot gain relatively to the United States.

Hence Japan's quest for more
naval power cannot find much sympathy either in London or Washington, and the best chance
of reaching a three-party agreement appears to lie in a substantial moderation of Japan's position. In this respect the most hopeful note which has been sounded for several years was the statement by the very influential Prince Konoze just before sailing
from Japan on his current visit
to the United States. He declared
publicly then that Japan would not
demand actual parity with the
navies of America and Britain,
but merely what he termed "defensive parity." Later this term was
defined by Navy Minister Osumi
as a defence strong enough to repel
any invasion of far-eastern waters,
but too weak to attack the coasts
of the United States or Britain.

Coming from such a source—
Prince Konoze is president of the House of Peers and has the confidence of all political parties—the moderation of Japanese demands on the eve of the discussions in London has to be regarded as significant of Japanese willingness to be guided by realities in
the diplomatic negotiations now in progress.

Strict application of the defensive parity principle, which was a
basis for negotiations both at Washington and London, would
not now result in any increase,
but rather a reduction of Japan's strength in ships compared with Britain and America, because Japan already possesses super-
defensive parity.

The proposal for freedom to transfer tonnage allowances from
one class of ships to another also
is not strictly a novelty. Carried
to an extreme, this is the French
"global" plan, which would remove restriction on the numbers of any type of ship so long as a total
tonnage for an entire navy was not exceeded. The principal objection
to such a method of limitation is
the danger of secrecy in naval
building, through which one nation
might gain a "surprise" advantage
over another, and the consequent danger of creating war-breeding suspicion.

Nevertheless, in recognition of
geographical and other differences
between nations which speak for
some latitude of choice as to the types of ships best suited to individual needs, the London Treaty
permits an exchange between destroyer and six-inch-gun-cruiser
tonnage, up to a limit of 10 per cent of the allowances in these categories. Moreover, the United States was standing for the same
policy at Geneva in 1927 and London in 1930, when seeking the right to build all of her allowed
cruisers of the eight-inch-gun type,
rather than having to include some
six-inch gunners.

It would therefore appear that
in this phase of naval limitation
may lie the necessary compromise
to prevent a deadlock. The cold
realities of national needs undoubtedly bar both America and

The Very Idea!

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

WE are writing this with
one hand, having had
the other badly injured
when we threw the bomb at
the Chairman of the Y.M.C.A. meeting. The
meeting discussed food and
other things.

Which reminds us that
our assistant mail-opener
brought to us yesterday a letter enquiring what we
knew about breakfasts.

Now, anyone who thinks they
can fool us with a question like
that has never read her "Who's Who." We know everything
there is to be known about breakfasts, and a few things that shouldn't be known.

The word "breakfast" comes from the original "break fast," as
used by Voce, O'Reilly, Larwood
and other bowlers. There is no
national British breakfast, unless
you count a brandy and soda and
an aspirin tablet as breakfast.

In America they toy with a grape-fruit, rusks, and ice water, or something like that.

In most of the books I've read
about the jolly old country house
parties in England, one wanders
down to breakfast at any old time
during the day, and one spongers
a devilled kidney here, a slab of
bacon there, an armful of toast,
perhaps a handful of marmalade,
and there you are.

Now, breakfast at our place is different to any breakfast in any other place. Everybody gets up
and hates everything solidly for
about twenty minutes, by which time breakfast is ready. Then you sit down and say, "Eggs! I'm sick
of eggs!"

Then the wife of your bosom
says, "Put that paper down! How would you get on at the Hongkong
Hotel if you propped your paper
up against the pickles at breakfast?"

Pickles! You retort, sneeringly,
"who ever heard of pickles on a breakfast table? That bottle of pickles has been put on this table
ever since we've been married, and
nobody has ever touched the
thing. I suppose you regard it as an ornament?"

You go on from there until the
point when you leave the flat after
one soul-satisfying slam of the front door.

Then, of course, there is the business girl's breakfast. This consists of two measured mouth-
fuls of tea and half a piece of toast.

Newspaper reporters' breakfasts
consist mostly of a large drink of
water out of the jug on the wash-
stand. Occasionally they are able to scrounge a bit of potato chips
at the Hotel the previous night.
George, the celebrated and almost notorious writer who tries to be
humorous on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday lived
nearly on potato chips and
counter lunches for twelve years
before he came to here. He ran out of hotels at Home; that's why
he came to Hongkong.

We ourselves always like to get
home in time for breakfast. We find it a great saving to stay out
all night. All we have to do
is warm our dinner up, and
there's our breakfast. On other occasions we find that one good
look at a breakfast is quite sufficient for us.

Wives should be very kind and
tactful to their husbands about breakfast time. They should get
the breakfast ready, put it on the
table, inform the husband, and
then go away and hide.

The correct time to come out of
hiding is when he starts bellowing,
"Where did you put my hat! Good
Lord, a man can't put a thing down
in this confounded place without
she moves it. Isn't there a blasted
clean handkerchief in the house?
What's the time? Where's the HANDKERCHIEFS!"

Then when you've found everything for him and done practically
everything except wash him, he
collects all the matches in the
house, including those near the gas
and stamps off muttering that he knows he's going to be late.

That's what breakfast does to a
man.

It ought to be prohibited.

Britain from seriously considering
any increase in Japan's proportion
of total naval tonnage compared
with their own. But Japan's desire for more elasticity in the
method of limitation, by permitting a greater measure of substitution of one type of ship for
another in order to compensate for
differences of fundamental circumstances, is within reason.
While this so-called "global"
method would defeat the basic
purpose of limitation if carried
to an extreme, nevertheless a
moderate adjustment of this nature to satisfy all countries ought
not to be difficult.

HUANG FU TO RESUME DUTIES

Satisfactory Agreement With Ariyoshi

Shanghai, Sept. 14. General Huang Fu, Chairman of the Peking Political Council, is proceeding to Nanking this morning by special train after staying here for a fortnight. It is officially stated that he will return to Peking after spending several days in the capital.

It is believed that his decision to resume his official duties at Peking is the result of his satisfactory arrangements reached with Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, in respect of Sino-Japanese diplomatic issues concerning North China.

Mr. Arino, Secretary of the Japanese Legation, however, denied that Mr. Ariyoshi's recent visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei at Nanking had any connection with North China problems.—Central News.

Mr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance, called on General Huang Fu last night and thoroughly discussed the financial situation in North China.—Reuter.

GERMAN OFFER TO LANCASHIRE

NOT ACCEPTABLE TO SPINNERS

London, Sept. 13. Lancashire spinners meeting in Manchester passed a resolution recording that they were not in favour of accepting the German proposal with regard to outstanding German debts. The meeting advised that a special committee be set up to consider the question. It is understood that under the terms of the offer before the meeting, German cotton yarn importers offered to pay their old debts, amounting to £267,000, in twelve monthly instalments, and earlier if the British Empire would increase its takings of German hosiery and gloves. They further asked for a resumption of yarn supplies, new business to be done at six months' credit instead of the usual thirty days' credit.—British Wireless.

NIGERIA LOAN CONVERSION

TERMS OF ISSUE ANNOUNCED

London, Sept. 13. Special interest attaches to the announcement of the terms of issue of the £4,188,000 3 per cent. inscribed stock of the Government of Nigeria, for which underwriting arrangements were made to-day. The issue is being made to replace £4,045,578 of Southern Nigeria 3½ per cent. stock 1930/35, which is the first 3½ per cent. loan to be the subject of conversion into stock bearing a smaller rate of interest. The new loan is to be issued at 97½, redeemable in 1956. Lists for cash applications open and close on September 17, but the conversion lists will be opened immediately and closed on September 28.—British Wireless.

EXPORT DUTY ON NATIVE RUBBER

D. E. I. ACTION IN THE CONTROL PLAN

Batavia, Sept. 14. It is announced that the export duty on native-grown rubber, as from October 1, has been fixed at 20 guilders per 100 kilograms on dry rubber. Duties for other assortments range from 15 to 18.50 guilders.

The dry rubber group consists of blankets, bark, crepe and all similar sheets manufactured by machinery not driven manually. The former system of reducing other rubber to a dry weight basis for duty purposes has been terminated. All rubber not classifiable as dry rubber will now be levied as "other assortments".—Reuter.

Mr. B. Wong Tapa, who is on a visit to England, was amongst the visitors at a recent luncheon of the Salthurn (Yorkshire) Rotary Club. In the course of a speech, he expressed his appreciation of the hospitality he has received, especially in Yorkshire, and his delight at the scenery on the moors. London impressed him with its vastness and the admirable manner in which the traffic was controlled.

Passengers arriving here by the a.s. President Harrison included Mr. Stuart B. Dunlap, General Manager of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer of China, Mr. J. C. Goltz, Managing Director of M-G-M for the Dutch East Indies also arrived on the same ship.

During 1916 he was Staff Captain with the Forces in France and

AMERICA'S CUP SHOCK

"Endeavour," sailed for England by its owner, Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, and the Rainbow.

ENDEAVOUR'S FEAT.

Endeavour is regarded by many yachtsmen as the best contender England has sent across the Atlantic. It made the crossing from Gosport to Newport in almost exactly sixteen days, nearly seven days faster than that of the Lipton yacht, Shamrock V in 1930 when it set a record of 23 days for the 4,000 miles.

The crossing was made easily and the yacht did not pitch and roll as did Shamrock V or take the heavy pounding the latter boat received.

SEVEN RACES

Seven races are scheduled around the triangular 30-mile course on Block Island Sound with four victories required. Races will be sailed every day except Sunday, although at the conclusion of one day's race a skipper may ask for a day's delay before the next one is held. If a boat is disabled during a race it must continue as best possible.

The cup was last contested for in 1930 when the late Sir Thomas Lipton made the last of his five efforts that cost him something like £2,000,000 although he never won the cup. In that year the winning Yacht was Enterprise, which showed its stern to Shamrock V in four straight races.

HIGHLY CONFIDENT.

The fact that the cup is in America's possession places the burden of challenging upon other nations—which always has been England—and makes it necessary to build a yacht not only for speed but sturdy enough to stand the rigorous Atlantic crossing.

Added to that is the fact that practically all yachting in England is done in heavy water and strong winds, while Long Island Sound, in which lies Block Island Sound, is addicted to light air currents. Those factors have aided the United States in keeping the America's cup for so long, although the America won it in 1851 in British waters.

Endeavour, however, made a splendid Atlantic crossing and has been built with an eye to the light currents to be found in America, and Mr. Sopwith, the owner-skipper, is highly confident of victory.

ENDEAVOUR FEATURED.

One important feature of the Endeavour is its 168-foot steel mast, lightly built and designed to catch every bit of air, no matter how light. It has steel rod shrouds like those on the American bonta Rainbow and Westania, but the rods have been tested to 100 English tons strength more than those of the American yachts. The mast, of tensile steel, is only 22 inches in diameter.

Rainbow's mast is 30 inches in diameter but Enterprise was only 18 inches. For support of Endeavour's mast knife-edged channels, that will offer little resistance to the water when the yacht is heeled, extend beyond the sides of the hull and give more leverage for the taut pull of shrouds.

Curved plates were welded together and strengthened with light steel diaphragms to form the mast. Nothing has been said to indicate it, but observers believe Mr. Sopwith is planning a great deal of faith in this feature. The English challenger is built a great deal like the Rainbow: both have long sharp bows and

CHINA'S VIOLATION OF DEMILITARISED ZONE

Dairen, Sept. 13. Colonel Takashi Sakai, the new Chief of Staff of the Japanese forces in North China, arriving here this morning, declared that Japan cannot overlook the recent violations of the demilitarised zone by the Chinese.

He characterised the rumour that was circulating in North China to the effect that something grave was at present looming, as mere hallucination.—Reuter.

other almost identical features of design but where Rainbow is almost flat on deck, Endeavour has a sharp curve down from amidships to the nose.

AMATEUR CREW.

A combined amateur and professional crew of 16 men will sail the Endeavour and a professional crew will man the American entry. The officers reported upon the arrival of Endeavour that the combination got along very well during the crossing and they add that the crew is "one of the best ever, since our trial sails in American waters."

The yacht is equipped with every modern sailing device, including a speed indicator, an instrument for registering wind force and labour saving capstans. The American entry is reported in the best of shape and experts are looking forward to one of the greatest series of races ever staged for the America's cup.—United Press and Reuter.

RACING SEASON OUTLOOK

NO "BUMPER" PROMISED

ADVISABILITY OF ENCOURAGING THE SMALL OWNER

(By "Captain Foster")

This time next week I shall have something to say regarding the prospects of the ponies engaged in the different races which will come up for decision tomorrow week, the commencement of our Autumn racing season, and, at the same time, I hope to have a little to say concerning the new subscription griffins for 1935. I gather that eighty "subs" have been subscribed for but that, as a number of subscribers wish to be relieved of their obligations in this respect, the Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club have re-opened the Subscription List, which will now close at noon on the day of the draw.

THEY SAY

THAT Bag & Baggage has been destroyed.
THAT Loo Reidy deserves very high praise for curing his leg ailments previously.
THAT the pony would still be winning good races had he remained in his possession.
THAT New Star is going to be hard 'un to beat this Autumn.
THAT the pony has summered exceedingly well in the North.

INDISPOSITION OF MR. HARRIMAN

The numerous friends of Mr. Gilbert Harriman will be pleased to hear that he is progressing favourably after his recent illness. I am, however, exceedingly sorry to hear that he will not be seen in the saddle for some little time; if at all this Autumn.

I gather that two of his mounts for the September 22nd Meeting have been placed. Mr. Davis will have the riding of The Bodega and Mr. Caplan will be piloting The Tiger.

There will be no race for Sadko at that Meeting, so the question of a rider for him has not cropped up. To my mind, Sadko always shows his best running with Mr.

The History Of Hyperion: Wonder Horse

THE GREAT LINE FOUNDED BY GONDOLETTE

The time has arrived for another good horse with "classic" credentials to leave the racetrack for the Stud, avers an article in Sporting Life. This is Hyperion, whose history is connected with a romance of the Turf.

Among the yearlings listed by the late Mr. Waring from his Benham House Stud, to be sold by Messrs. Tattersall at Ascot during the race-week of 1905 there was a filly by Loved One from Donjon that went to Major Edwards for 75g.

At the time this looked about her value as except that her sire—who was then standing at a fee of 10g.—had a line of Pilgrimage, there was nothing remarkable in her breeding.

The following season, prior to which she had been named Gondolette, she won a "seller" at Brighton, and a little later scored in a similar event at Epsom.

She was then sold to Lord Westbury for 800g.

BOUGHT BY LORD WAVERLEY.

This owner raced her without much success until, at the end of her three-year-old career, she was sold at the Newmarket Second October Sales to Lord Waverley—then Col. Hall—for 300g.

Another season without a bracket terminated her racing career, and she was sent to the Tully Stud, in Ireland, where she bred Good Sport, who was third in Aboyne's Derby, and Let Fly, and was then catalogued carrying a foal by the Derby winner, Minerva, at the December Sales of

The trade depression, which is making itself felt in the Colony, is doubtless responsible for withdrawals from ownership. It would therefore seem that the 1935 racing season is not going to be a "bumper" one, especially in Derby griffin events. I do not wish to be unduly pessimistic but I cannot see our Derby ponies totalling over 60, which is a large drop in numbers compared with importations in the last three to four years. Prices of ponies should go down in sympathy and I shall be pleased to see this as it may have the tendency of bringing in new and/or small owners when these feel that they can purchase a live candidate for Derby honours for a sum in the vicinity of about $1,200.

ENCOURAGE SMALL OWNERS.

I feel that this is a good price and one that should leave a fair margin of profit to the Dealers. Prices at Shanghai, which is the Newmarket in the East, do not, I think, average this figure, while $1,200 would be considered a high price at ports such as Tientsin, Tainan and Hankow.

I fully realize that racing in the main is a rich man's hobby, and Owners are at liberty to pay what they like for their griffins, but I am concerned with the small Owners who are after all perhaps the largest supporters of our racing. They should, in my opinion, be encouraged, as without their backing it would be a sad day for racing generally in the Colony. Take our C and D class races for instance; they are by far our most popular events, producing our largest fields, and best finishes while our A class races—confined to our outstanding ponies—are usually very tame in comparison, and evince practically no public interest.

Harriman in the saddle and the combination of the two has produced some spectacular wins at the Valley, and thrilled scores of spectators.

MACAO RACE MEETING

Fine Day Of Sport

GOOD RIDING

(By "Captain Foster")

The Race Meeting at Macao was a decided success, the attendance being better than I expected, and the racing was distinctly good. The fields, although on the small side, which is only to be expected at this time of the year, produced some good finishes, especially in the Mong Ha Handicap (First Section), when Captain Jack Jordan on Festival Eve just got up to snatch a short head victory over Mr. Norman Deitz on Vago.

I was particularly impressed with the riding of Mr. Li Fuk-fai on Delightful Chance when finishing second to Sarabande, ridden by Mr. Ip Kuei-yin in the Arela Preta Handicap. This Novice appears to be very keen and is snapping nicely, so much so that I do not think it will be very long before he graduates from the Novices' class. So far he has only ridden half a dozen races at the Valley but, as his father (Mr. Li Shu-pang) owns the powerful "Soldier" stable, it will not be unreasonable to suppose that Mr. Li Fuk-fai will be having the riding of some of his good ponies this Autumn.

THE VETERANS DELIGHT.

The two veterans, Mr. Bob Charles and African Eve had no difficulty in winning the opening event (Mounted Troop Handicap) when returning to the dismounting enclosure. The win was all the more meritorious as Mr. Charles was far from well and it was altogether most sporting of him to ride. African Eve has had a "leg" and his gameness alone put him in the first position. Pat (Trooper Browning) ran a thoroughly good mare, but I do think the Handicapper was a little too drastic in asking her to shoulder 175 lbs!

I am afraid my fancy Fair View did not run up to expectations and I cannot help feeling that she could not possibly have been well within herself, her running from the jump off being so very disappointing. I had expected—Gold—Currency to show up prominently but I was not prepared to see such an easy win. Mr. Paul Botelho rode with good judgment.

Miss Joan Dowbiggin was given a hearty ovation after winning the Ladies race on Fi Fa, and the win was most popular. She is a very keen rider and it was nice to see her register a win. Miss Pam Scott Harston must have had a very hard ride on City of Shanghai as he is well known to be a pronounced slug. The two Fair girls rode the two "View" ponies, "Sea" and "Harbour", and very well too did they ride!

MR. DENIS HAZELL'S REVELATION

Football That Is Laced Before Inflation

Mr. Denis H. Hazell, Far Eastern Director of Messrs. William Sykes, Ltd., is back again in Hongkong, following a flying visit to England and a long business tour of Malaya.

He has brought back with him, not only vivid memories of two hours spent in the company of Don Bradman, but several hundred cricket bats, personally selected and signed by that cricket genius.

Nevertheless, the most interesting thing Mr. Hazell has brought with him is the new triple Seal valve football, which seems destined to create a sensation. Certainly it promises to fill a much felt want. This new football is that it is laced up before inflation, which not only does away with stray lace ends (the cause of many a cut face), but ensures a perfect shape.

The device by which this is achieved is ingenious, and the results entirely satisfactory. Mr. Hazell has also brought back several footballs made under the same principle. To say the very least, this type of ball has the quality of being something entirely new.

HISTORIC FOOT-FAULT PENALTY

Famous Davis Cup Incident Recalled

Calling foot-faults at match point has caused considerable comment this summer.

The most remarkable of these penalizations was recorded in 1923, during the Davis Cup tie between Australasia and Spain, played at the Germantown Cricket Club.

Australasia had won the first match and in the second Pat O'Hara Wood opposed Manuel Alonso, who was afterward to become the No. 2 ranking player of the United States. Pat led at two sets to one and 5-2 and 40-30 match point.

WHAT HAPPENED.

Determined to stake all on a service ace, Wood, having forced Alonso out of position with his first delivery (a fault) crashed over a fast service straight down the centre-line, which Alonso vainly strove to reach. In doing so, however, Wood's foot swung over the base-line and Paul Gibbons, the foot-fault judge, penalized him. The eye saw that the ear heard the call "foot fault," and the former registered more impressively than the latter. It seemed, therefore, all over. Wood and Alonso appeared to start to twirl each other to shake hands; Captain Patterson started to come over and congratulate Wood; and there was an instant of bewilderment while the gallery and everybody else strove to take it all in.

PERFECT ALONSO.

It was Alonso who occupied the centre of the stage, however, from this time on. He was dramatic, but not theatrical. "Hurry, hurry," he cried to the ball boys, while his hand, held out for the balls, was a mass of twitching fingers. At the end of each game he almost ran to take up his position and waited feverishly while Wood towelled himself or slipped his beverage. Back and forth behind the base-line he almost bounded, like a lion waiting for his prey. Yet there was the most perfect court conduct on his part. He played the game. He hurried himself, but he made not the slightest attempt to hurry Wood nor did he betray the slightest desire, while he waited, to hurry his opponent. He pulled up from 2-5 to 7-5 and ran straight to 8-0 and 6-1 in the fifth set.

FOOT-FAULT BOGEY

Will It Be Laid By New Methods

"Is the bogey of the foot-fault rule about to be laid?" asks Tennis Illustrated, and continues: Several members of the Umpires' Association consider that they have solved the difficulty of judging accurately whether a player swings a foot over the line when he hits the ball, which has always been the major problem of the foot-fault rule.

It has now been proved that by looking through a pair of opera or field glasses the wrong way round, the foot-fault judge sees the figure of the player so much reduced that he can see the ball hit and also the baseline at the same time. Clarity of vision is not dimmed by this device, which had official trials during the Wimbledon Cup tie and the Wimbledon Championships.

LAWSON LITTLE THROUGH

UNEXPECTED DEFEAT OF T. A. TORRANCE

Brooklyn, N.Y., Sept. 13.

Lawson Little, brilliant American golfer, who won the British Amateur championship this year with a record score, advanced to the semi-final of the American Amateur championship to-day.

He was joined by Reynold Smith, David Goldman and Don Armstrong. To-morrow, the four will play over 36 holes according to the following draw:

Reynold Smith v. David Goldman
Don Armstrong v. Lawson Little

The fifth round and quarter-finals were completed to-day. In the fifth round, David Goldman beat Fred Haas after a close match, while Chick Evans had an easy passage against Mark Stuart, finishing four up.

Lawson Little became dormy three against Harry Gandy, and clinched the issue by winning the next hole to take the match at 4 and 2.

TORRANCE BEATEN.

The big surprise of the fifth round was the elimination of T. A. Torrance, one of the best fancied candidates. He lost a keen contest with Edmund Driggs of New York by two up. The players were all square at the ninth, but Driggs forged ahead on the subsequent holes.

The draw for the quarter-finals found Goldman opposed to Driggs, Armstrong pitted against Evans, Lawson Little against Willie Turnesa and Reynold Smith against Ernest Pieper.

The sensation of this round was the defeat of Chick Evans, whose powerful play in the earlier stages had made him nearly as firm a favourite as Lawson Little.

Evans, however, fell a victim to Armstrong, who won by the surprisingly big margin of 4 and 3.

Goldman had another narrow shave, finishing but two up, but Little easily held his own against Turnesa, and finally won comfortably.

The keenest tie was that between Reynold Smith and Pieper, which went to the twenty-third hole before settlement. Smith then obtained the necessary hole for the match.

FULL RESULTS.

Full results as cabled by Reuter follow.

FIFTH ROUND.

D. Goldman beat Fred Haas 2 and 1.
Chick Evans beat Mark Stuart 4 and 3.

Lawson Little beat Harry Gandy 4 and 2.
Edmund Driggs beat T. A. Torrance 2 up.

QUARTER-FINALS.

Goldman beat Driggs 2 and 1.
Don Armstrong beat Chick Evans 4 and 3.
Lawson Little beat Willie Turnesa 3 and 2.
Reynold Smith beat Ernest Pieper at 23rd.

FINAL GROOMING.

Endeavour On Slips With Rainbow.

ON EVE OF RACE.

Bristol, Sept. 13.

The trim, slim racing yacht, T. O. Spilth's Endeavour, and the syndicate-owned Rainbow, challenger and defender respectively in the coming contest for the America's Cup, were hauled out of the water to-day at the specialists' slips here for a final grooming before their classic test of speed and seamanship.

The veteran designer Nat Horrocks, builder of five of America's defenders, which raced against the late Sir Thomas Lipton's boats, commented on the prospects of the Endeavour's capturing the trophy, said: "She is a fine boat—and a fast one."

But he would only shake his head when asked for his selection of the winner.

A huge influx of people has already commenced here. Trains are crowded and boats, motorcars and yachts of all descriptions are arriving hourly. Anchorage is most difficult to find in the bay already and there will be many more craft here before the day of the race.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for the viewing of the races from ocean liners, seaplanes and water taxis.—Reuter Special.

INDIA MAY HAVE M.C.C. OF HER OWN

MOVEMENT TO FORM GOVERNING BODY OF CRICKET

India is to have an M.C.C. of its own. There are likely to be great changes shortly in the cricket organisations of this part of the Empire. India takes its cricket very seriously. It enters the scale of high politics.

Prince Behar, a member of one of its ruling families and himself a crack cricketer, who now lives in London, is taking part in negotiations to reorganise his country's cricket.

He had a special talk with the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon, when he was in London on a visit. The idea of the prince and his colleagues is to set up a central governing organisation in India on the lines of the M.C.C.

Lord Willingdon was more than interested. He, too, is a keen cricketer. He has decided to sound the feeling for this suggestion when he returns to India.

Cricket at present in India is in pretty much the same position as it was in the early days in Australia. There are several small organisations, each at variance with its members and pickering among themselves. This makes the task of arranging Test matches doubly difficult.

"There is strong support in India for a body on the lines of the M.C.C.," Prince Behar said after he left the Viceroy.

"Lord Willingdon agreed with this. Our idea is to set up an M.C.C. of our own."

"Then we can set about arranging Test matches, not only with England, but with Australia, South Africa, and West Indies."

"People over here do not realise how much enthusiasm there is in India for good cricket. For one thing, it pays much better. There are extremely good gates, and very few professional players."

"Even so, we are up to Test standard. It will not be long before we are beating you at the game you gave us."

Whether or not Craigengower win the first division of the Lawn Bowls League will probably be decided to-morrow, when the C.C.C. "A" team oppose Civil Service.

Craigengower are the visitors and this is a big handicap to them. Happily, however, they will be able to field a full team, since their interport players return to-day and will be available.

COLONY SWIMMING SUCCESS

TWO INTERPORT EVENTS WON

Hongkong started off with two creditable victories on the first night of the Interport swimming meet at Shanghai, when, at the French Club tank last night, the Colony swimmers picked up eleven valuable points. Tientsin is second with nine and Shanghai third with seven.

Hongkong's successes were in the 220 yards free style, which Lawrence won in fine style, and the 100 yards breast stroke, which Kwok Chun-hang captured by a length. In the relay race, the Colony team was third, in spite of high expectations.

Shanghai, Sept. 13.
Hongkong won the first event of the Interport swimming meet here to-night, the 220 yards free style.

W. Lawrence, the Colony flash, lead the whole way and won easily. Shanghai took the second and third places, Hammond finishing two lengths behind Lawrence and N. Lokan another length behind Hammond.

Lawrence's time was 2 mins. 33.2/5 secs.

ANOTHER EASY WIN.

In the second event, Hongkong again shook off the challenge of its rivals, when Kwok Chun-hang easily won the 100 yards breast stroke, leading by three lengths.

He set a new Interport record in this event, his time being 76 3/5 secs. R. Norman of Tientsin put off to a good start and led early in the race, but Kwok passed him in the first length off the tank and thereafter was never threatened. Another Hongkong relay team, E. Marques, was third.

RELAY SURPRISE.

Hongkong's much-fancied relay team failed to come up to expectations of its backers in the third event of the day, and shipped water behind both Tientsin and Shanghai, which finished in that order.

G. Nigmatovitzky, of Tientsin, laid the foundation for his team's victory by giving their last man, P. Rodan, a good start. Tientsin won by a length only, Hammond threatening up the tank in a brilliant last effort.

Hongkong changed the line-up of its team at the last moment and swam Paget first, followed by Lau Po-hay, E. B. Roza and Lawrence.

RESULTS.

200 yards free style.—1, Lawrence (Hongkong); 2, Hammond (Shanghai); 3, Logan (Shanghai). Time—2 min. 37 3/5 secs.
100 yards breast stroke.—1, Kwok Chun-hang (Hongkong); 2, R. Norman (Tientsin); 3, E. Marques (Hongkong). Time—76 3/5 secs.
Relay.—1, Tientsin; 2, Shanghai; 3, Hongkong. Time—2 mins. 9 1/5 secs.

LT. WILLIAMS HITS A CENTURY

East Lancshires' Cricket Win

A friendly cricket match between Lincolnshire Regiment and East Lancashire Regiment was played at Shanghai on Wednesday.

The East Lancshires batted first and declared with the score at 214 for three wickets. Lt. J. P. Williams being undefeated with 131 runs. His innings was characterised by the exception of a possible catch when his score stood at 120. What at first appeared to be an easy catch for deep mid-on was completely misjudged by the fieldsmen.

Pte. Turner played a steady innings for the Lincoln, scoring 62 not out.

The Lincolnshires were all out for 147 leaving the East Lancshires winners by 67 runs but the last two wickets fell when the light was falling. Pte. Herbert, the East Lancashire wicket-keeper did not concede a single bye and Lieut. Salmon bowled well taking four for 24.

The History Of Hyperion

This is breeding that will stand Hyperion in good stead as a sire on his dam's side.

On his sire's side nothing could be better, as he, like Solario and Singapore, is by Lady James Douglas' game old horse Gainsborough, who won the war-time "triple crown" of 1918, and was by the St. Leger winner Bayardo out of the Oaks winner Rosecrop, by St. Frisquin out of Rosaline, by Muske's son Trenton.

A MODEST DEBUT.

Making his debut at the Doncaster May Meeting of 1923, Hyperion ran a poor fourth to Abbita, Hello Peggy, and London Fog in the Zeland Plate.

On his next appearance he did better by beating a field of 22 in the New Stakes at Ascot, after which he earned brackets in the Prince of Wales' Stakes at Goodwood.

After running third to Manitoba and Tavern in the Boscawen Stakes at Newmarket, he finished off his first season by scoring in the Dewhurst Stakes at the Newmarket Houghton Meeting.

On the strength of this Mr. Fawcett gave him out against Manitoba's 5st 7lb in his Free Handicap for two-year-olds, and last year he more than justified this by going through the season unbeaten with brackets in the Chester Vase, the Derby, the Prince of Wales' Stakes, and the St. Leger to his credit.

This year, after scoring in the March Stakes and the Burwell Stakes at Newmarket, he was unluckily beaten in the Gold Cup at Ascot and the Dullingham Stakes at Newmarket. His fee as a stallion has not yet been decided upon, but he is already full for 1935 and numerous nominations have been taken for 1936.

ARMY TENNIS DOUBLES MATCHES DECIDED

FINE RECOVERY

Some good games were seen at Sookunpoo yesterday afternoon when third-round ties in the doubles of the Area Tennis Tournament were decided.

While some of the other matches resulted in much the way that was expected, the tie between Andrews and Purcell, of the South Wales Borderers, against Lewis and Rice of the same regiment was an amazing affair. Lewis and Rice carried everything before them in the first set, which they won without the loss of a single game. Andrews and Purcell then recovered to such good purpose that they annexed the next two sets with the loss of only a game in each. Results of yesterday's games follow:

Andrews and Purcell (S.W.B.) beat Lewis and Rice (S.W.B.) 0-6, 6-1, 6-1. Gillow and Taylor (R.A.O.C.) beat Underwood and O'Donovan (S.W.B.) 6-3, 6-4.

Jarman and Davis (S.W.B.) beat Harrigan and Blackler (R.E.) 7-5, 4-6, 6-2. Miller and Taylor (R.A.P.C.) beat Ballard and Eycatt (R.A.S.C.) 4-6, 7-5, 6-2.

THE SINGLES.

The Singles Championship will commence on Monday with the following matches:

L/Cpl. Crayford (R.A.S.C.) v. Q. M. S. Oldfield (R.A.P.C.); L/Cpl. Lilley (S.W.B.) v. Sgt. Wood (R.A.); Drummer Jones (S.W.B.) v. Sgt. Halford (A.E.C.); S/Sgt. Flood (R.A.S.C.) v. L/Cpl. ## STRIKE MEDIATION BREAK-DOWN

CONFLICTING FACTIONS PLAN FOR LONG STRUGGLE

New York, Sept. 13. Cotton millers and operatives are now preparing for a protracted struggle, following the collapse of mediation efforts.

Speculation is rife as to whether President Roosevelt will intervene directly in the dispute. No further meetings between employers and the Arbitration Board have been held. The Board is presenting its report direct to the President.

Union officials are now concentrating on the provision of relief for strikers. Employers are reinforcing factory guards.

Governor Green of Rhode Island has issued a proclamation calling an emergency meeting of the State Assembly at noon to-day, following further violence.

Guards Open Fire.

Latest reports of rioting come from Woonsocket where three strikers were wounded as a result of National Guards firing on 5,000 rioters outside a textile factory. Two policemen and two National Guardsmen were injured by bricks thrown by strikers.

Rioting broke out soon after the Governor had announced that henceforth the National Guards would be armed only with clubs.

It is likely when the Assembly meets to-morrow, the Governor will ask for a large money appropriation in order to increase the State Police. The Chief of Police at Woonsocket has already sent an urgent message to the Governor stating it is imperative that additional troops be sent.

It is understood the Woonsocket mob got out of control late last night and began looting shops as well as factories. The police were forced to open fire and one of the looting party was fatally wounded, and died sometime later.

Eventually, the National Guards saved the situation when the police were getting the worst of the encounter.—Reuter.

By invitation of H.E. the Governor the Oxford and Cambridge Society annual tennis match will be played at Mountain Lodge on Sunday.

THE SUPERB KEEPING QUALITIES OF KLIM—AND A FEW SCIENTIFIC FACTS.

Klim is packed in such a manner as to keep indefinitely in the unopened tin.

No expiration dates are placed upon trade packages and the physician may prescribe with full confidence that his patients will receive Klim in perfect condition regardless of the time the container may have been on the druggist's or dealer's shelf.

These superior keeping qualities are the result of a distinct advance in the method of packing by vacuum.

The system is exclusive with Klim in that all oxygen is removed, including that from the intracellular spaces of the powder itself. Replacement in part with an inert gas insures against any oxidation of the fat or development of rancidity.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY.

BOOTS BARBURN, 18 and pretty, belongs to the younger set of the fashionable New York suburb. The Barburns have had financial reverses. SYLVIA RIVERA, richest girl in town, is giving party at the Beach Club and Boots is heartbroken because she is not invited. She accepts a last-minute invitation to a dinner to be given the same night as Sylvia's party by MISS WATERMAN, one of Larchmont's social arbiters.

Boots overhears her crowd laughing about her acceptance of the dinner invitation and is crushed by this unkindness. That night at the Beach Club she meets HARDY WHITEHEAD, one of Sylvia's guests, and he urges her to come for a ride in his sailboat.

CHAPTER IV

At Sylvia's table the glasses were filled and emptied and filled again. Great red roses in a crystal vase dropped in the heart and smoke and scattered their petals on the white cloth. Food cooled on the plates while girl and boy laughed, talked, danced and wandered back again.

Meanwhile, Hardy's absence did not go unnoticed. Patty's sharp eyes instantly caught it. Isabel was conscious of his departure and Sylvia herself, although apparently ignoring it, was perfectly aware of his defection.

One of the boys, with the male's delicious usual obtuseness, inquired casually, "Where's Hardy got to?" Isabel pressed her small slipper against his instep, signalling for silence.

It did not matter, really, Isabel said to herself, annoyed. There were more than enough men to go around. Why did they always have to know to Sylvia—save her feelings? She would not admit even privately, she held that Sylvia had on the crowd. Sylvia's parties, Sylvia's money and her big car and the orchids that she wore so unconsciously, impressed them. Some of them, were in her debt, in a way, and had to curry favours.

Laddie's father worked for Mr. Rivers and when Patty's allowance fell short it was Sylvia who came forward. Isabel happened to know, and paid for luncheon tips, trips into the city, even silk stockings sometimes.

"As for me, I don't owe her anything," Isabel reflected, with satisfaction. Ah, but didn't she, really? Sylvia had made her accept that black chiffon dress, when they were in the play together. Isabel had borrowed it to play Mrs. Hastings, in "Not for a Day," up at the high school, and later Sylvia had said, with apparent carelessness, "I want you to keep it. No, but really, I mean it."

Isabel had been tempted beyond her strength. The black chiffon had made her creamy skin look creamier; it had brought out every single glint in her copper-coloured hair. It was the sophisticated sort of frock young girls dream about and their mothers refuse to buy for them.

So she had kept it. And she had found, after that, it was not so easy to be simple and natural with Sylvia. It was easier to fall in with her mood, play up to her, bite back the contradictions that rose to one's lips when Sylvia made one of her cool, outrageous, extravagant pronouncements.

Sylvia had not been able to buy Boots—had not, in very truth, tried. No, from the instant they had met, between the two girls it had been war to the knife. And now Isabel thought Boots was committing the crowning crime of all, walking off with Sylvia's man. At least, she supposed Hardy was with Boots. When last seen, his bright head had been bent over Boots' gilt one, their steps had melted together like so much liquid poetry.

Boots, in her one pretty frock, Isabel said to herself, really, was better than a dozen Sylvias.

"This party's died on its feet," Sylvia announced, suddenly in a silence. "Let's do something. How about Henry's?"

If she weren't the hostess, Isabel reflected, they'd all be perfectly frank about it and say they wanted to stay and see the thing through. The party was as good as it had ever been, only Sylvia's long dark eyes were narrowed now, her mouth was set in a petulant line. Sylvia was very angry.

They gathered up their things: Sylvia's white and silver bags, her frothy wrap, Patty's compact, Isabel's lipstick. It was late, Isabel thought. The older women had begun to look tired. And Boots Barburn was not at Mrs. Waterman's table. Oh, well—just as Isabel skirted the musicians' dais, a shout went up out of doors.

None of the men who always hung around the club—not exactly an attendant, just one of the "regulars" in blue jeans and a battered cap, went running down the pier. Isabel heard the words, "Man overboard." She ran, too. Everybody, it seemed, was out the pier as fast as their legs.

In frail frocks, men in dinner clothes, their eyes searching the black horizon. "Young fool!" she heard a white-haired, mustached man say, angrily. Then someone cried, "They've got him," and the words ran from mouth to mouth.

Hardy? It was Hardy and everyone knew he was a whiz with a sailboat. What could have happened? The night was calm, the sound was running smooth as black glass.

Isabel's heart began to beat very fast. She was fond of Boots—always had been. What if anything had happened to Boots? She had lost the others now: Sylvia and Patty and Laddie were nowhere to be seen. She tried to see over the shoulders of a tall man just in front of her, and failed. Isabel was thoroughly frightened now. She rushed her way through the crowd, back toward the club-house. Some of the younger people were making a great joke of the whole thing.

"Well, if they will get slashed!" she heard a high, giggling voice say, jeeringly. Isabel was terribly angry. Imagine anyone making fun of anything so terribly serious.

Boots wasn't there. Oh, Isabel said to herself, wildly and despairingly—the worst had happened. Hardy had upset the boat. Boots, tangled in those fluttering skirts, had been lost. Boots was a fine swimmer, but—you couldn't do much with a long dress wound around you. Foolish, foolish, unhappy Boots! Isabel felt somehow responsible for her. She had seen it hurt and bewilderment in the girl's eyes that night, as she danced by. It was the fault of all of them.

"I can't—can't bear it," Isabel sobbed soundlessly to herself, huddled against some hawthorn bushes in the bank of shrubbery surrounding the house.

Suddenly she heard her name called in the stillness. "Isabel! Isabel!" She trembled all over. Was it true then, that ghosts came back to haunt you? It was a ghostly voice, faint and far away, and yet it was Boots' voice, surely!

"What?" she quavered bravely. "Who is it?" She peered into the darkness, unable to distinguish a thing.

"It's me—Boots," said the voice steadily. "I'm here in the summer house."

Isabel demolished the space between the shrubbery and the old, rustic embowered summer house in two jumps. Yes, it was Boots. Barburn and not her ghost who sat huddled in the shadow.

"What on earth's the matter?" Isabel's teeth were chattering. She felt as though she were going to be sick.

"There's such a racket down on the pier," Boots said in a fretful voice. "I didn't know what to do. I've lost my shoes—"

"Lost your shoes?" The full tide of relief flowed over Isabel. She reached out a tentative hand, gripping her friend's shoulder. "You're not—no, you're not!" she said with apparent irrelevance.

"No, of course not. Why should I be? I can't think what's wrong with everyone to-night," Boots complained. "The whole world seems to have gone crazy or something. Everyone's ranting and screaming down on the pier like a crowd of Fijis."

"Oh, Boots, darling!" Isabel laughed aloud, from sheer relief. "I thought... I was sure..."

"And now the thing is, I must get home—but how?" Boots demanded, unheeding. "That foolish boy! When I wouldn't go sailing with him, he picked me up and ran and my shoes dropped off... and I got away from him and dashed and hid here. He went off in the boat by himself but I couldn't find my shoes anywhere and I guess I had a good cry—don't tell anyone I'm such a fool, crazy darling, and I must have been asleep."

The relief of hearing her say the commonplace words, plaintively, comically, was exquisite. Isabel hugged her.

"Oh, Hardy's boat tipped over," she said, "and I thought you'd gone with him... my mind was just in a whirl..."

"I hope he's all right," Boots contributed, although he did not terribly and I was frightened for a minute, and Mrs. Waterman will never forgive me, that's certain. I can't explain."

"The thing now," Isabel said, "is to get you home. Oh, if I'd only brought the roadster! I wanted to, but Laddie offered to drive me..."

She considered the situation momentarily, her bright eyes thoughtful. "Look," she offered, in the silence. "I'll tell Mrs. Waterman you were taken ill—that you went off to the dressing room and didn't feel equal to coming back. That crab-meat at supper," said Isabel viciously, "was enough to set anybody off."

"No, no, she'd never believe it," Boots said despondently. "It sounds silly. If I had my shoes I'd go in and explain to her myself—tell the whole story. But I can't go back in there like this."

Isabel shrugged her shoulders. "I s'pose you can't."

"Could you get Laddie or somebody, and have him drive over into the curve and I'd make a dash for it?" Boots wanted to know. "I'll drive Larry's car myself," Isabel decided. "He left the keys in it. He always does. I'll just run you home and come back later. Look, when I whistle you come. I'll have the engine running—"

Boots waited apprehensively in the darkness. The crowd on the veranda had thinned now. Attendants could be seen, moving about in the big lighted rooms, straightening chairs, clearing littered tables. The orchestra played "Home, Sweet Home."

Still Isabel did not come. Boots' head ached. She was desperately trying to fend off thoughts of the morrow—of her apologies to an angry and incredulous hostess of the giggle which would be her portion if the story got around. But just now all she could afford to contemplate was the immediate problem. Once home, safe in her own room, she could plan for the future.

There was a low whistle from the vicinity of the hydrangeas, glimmering palely in the darkness. Boots ran in that direction. The dewy grass was damp to the soles of her thin stockings. She glimpsed the roadster, heard the blessed sound of the purring motor, jumped in. But it was not Isabel at the wheel. It was Russ Lund, the swimming instructor at the club.

BARON JANSSEN LEAVES FOR HOME

His Excellency Baron Emmanuel Janssen, the Belgian Special Ambassador to China, accompanied by Baroness Janssen, passed through the Colony yesterday by the Lloyd Trieste liner Conte Rosso, en route to Venice, from where he will proceed to Brussels, his mission accomplished.

The Baron was designated by the Belgium Government to officially inform the President of the Chinese Republic of the death of King Albert, and the accession to the throne of his son Leopold III.

In addition to Baroness Janssen, M. Andre Janssen, son; M. Robert Jadot, Madame Jadot, M. Raymond Herremans, and Lieutenant Mondran were included in the special Belgian Mission. They arrived in China at the end of last month, and have in addition to their official duties, visited many northern cities.

Yesterday morning the members of the Mission came ashore from the Conte Rosso and spent the day sight-seeing on the island and mainland. They were attended by the Belgium Consul-General at Hongkong, M. H. Van der Stratten, and others.

Baron Janssen is an outstanding personality in the Belgian business world. He is President of the Societe Belge de Banques, the Union Chimique Belge, the Federation des Producteurs d'Azote, the Union des Fabriques Belges, the Textiles Artificiels, the Compagnie Internationale pour la Fabrication Mecanique de Verre, (the Libbey Owens procedure), the Compagnie pour le Commerce d'Outremer. In addition, Baron Janssen is Vice-President or Administrator of twenty-six other Belgian or foreign firms. He is also former Director of the Solvay Co.

M. Robert Jadot is a son of M. Jean Jadot, former Governor of the Societe Generale de Belgique, who 35 years ago constructed the railway line from Peking to Hankow.

CHINESE EMISSARY COURTS TIBET

Simla, Sept. 13. Reports from Lhasa describe a picturesque manoeuvre by Huang Mu-sung on September 9 to reassert China's sovereignty in Tibet, and one which caused a sensation in Lhasa.

Huang recently announced that the Chinese Government was anxious to present a seal and special title to the Dalai Lama, but the Tibetan National Assembly refused the seal as signifying Tibet's subordination to China, and added that, anyway, the Dalai Lama was dead.

Undaunted, Huang placarded Lhasa eulogising the Dalai Lama as the author of 3,000 benefactions, the Protector of the Kingdom and the Saviour of all sentient things. He was not departed, said the placards, and would soon be born again.

Huang then strongly hinted that Tibetans should join the Family of Five Nations, including the Chinese, Manchus, Mongols and Moslems and the fifth member of which was Tibet. They should place full reliance in the Chinese Government, he said, which would ensure their happiness for ever.

Commenting, The Times says that unfortunately the Tibetans recall that in 1903 China denounced the Dalai Lama as proud, extravagant, lewd, slothful, disorderly and disaffected, and thereafter invaded Tibet and deposed the Dalai Lama.

Since 1913, when Great Britain at the Simla Conference fruitlessly endeavoured to settle the Sino-Tibetan dispute, Chinese and Tibetan relations have been broken off. The Times hopes Huang's tactlessness will not lead to renewal of discord between the nations.—Our Own Correspondent.

the Belgian Legation in Shanghai for a short time, about two years ago.

On their way to China the members of the Mission spent a month visiting the Netherlands East Indies, including Java and Bali, and later passed some time in French Indo-China, where they made a trip to the temples at Angkor. Some of the delegates returned to Belgium from Shanghai by continuing around the world.

WIDOW'S DEATH

MURDER BY A PERSON OR PERSONS UNKNOWN

A verdict of murder against a person or persons unknown, the cause of death being strangulation, was returned by a Jury at the Coroner's inquest, conducted by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, which was continued at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon into the death of a widow, Chung Lan, aged 67 years. She was found dead in a hut at the Ka Sai Wan village, Stanley, on the morning of July 9.

The Jury were Messrs. F. L. Marques (Foreman), E. C. Fincher and C. L. Koch.

Cheung Tai, widow, a friend of Chung Lan, said the last time she saw the deceased was about 8 p.m. the previous day. Chung then went to her hut to sleep. One day, about a week before her death, she saw Chung Lan sitting under a tree, muttering that someone was worrying her. She told witness that someone had come down from the country and asked her for money, but she did not give the person's name. She had sold some pigs recently and the whole village knew about it.

Lo Sam, a nephew of deceased, said he was not in the habit of visiting his aunt. The last time he had seen her alive was about a month before her death. He did not know whether any person had a grudge against his aunt, and could not give the reason for her being killed. He identified the body at the mortuary.

After Yam Chiu, a Chinese constable, had deposed to removing the body to the mortuary, Sergeant W. S. Dail, in charge of the Stanley station, said he went to the scene, and found the woman lying on the floor of the hut. A piece of rope was tied tightly round her neck, and she was dead. The only signs of struggle was that her clothes were torn.

Coroner's Summing.

Mr. Hamilton, addressing the Jury, said that if they could find from the evidence that the woman had in some way strangled herself, it was for them to bring in a verdict of suicide. If they decided that the woman was killed by someone, they would have to find whether there was evidence against any particular person, or else they would have to bring a verdict of murder against a person or persons unknown. They should remember the situation of the Colony. It was easy in three or four hours for a man to be completely swallowed up in China, and it made it very difficult for the Police. If the woman was killed in the middle of the night, there was no reason why the man could not be in Chinese territory before the body was discovered in the morning.

The Jury brought in their verdict after ten minutes retirement.

THE CANINE HUMORIST

DACHSHUND STORIES

Although he may not be the smallest, the Dachshund, for his size, is most certainly the longest dog in the world.

It is not generally known, however, that the Dachshund, whose appearance is often the cause of mirth among those who do not know him very well, has, perhaps, a more highly-developed sense of humour than any other breed.

The famous writer, George Meredith, had a Dachshund called Islet, who came from Sir Fitzharding Maxse's kennels at Holford, then a British possession. When Islet died, Meredith wrote an epitaph in verse on this "wagging humorist": "This was not just a little dog, for Meredith and Islet treated each other as equals, and shared jokes together. The dog would often enter the room laughing and showing all his teeth, with eyes sparkling with fun, and if by chance Meredith took no notice, the dog would rap on the coat-sleeve with his paw—and continue rapping until attention was paid to him."

The present-day Dachshund fully maintains his predecessors' reputation for fun-making, and many are the stories told of the Dachshund's determination to enjoy himself even in the most unpromising situations.

A famous Dachshund breeder tells the story of a dog he owned, who was extremely fond of retrieving stones thrown by anyone who would take on the job. The usual procedure was for the dog to find a stone, and with an appealing look in his eye and persuasive little noises in his throat, lay it at the feet of someone—preferably a complete stranger. On one occasion a rather serious fire broke out in the village, and when the fire was at its height the dog was seen to go up to the hot and perspiring captain of the fire brigade, and then and there invite him to participate in a little game of stone-throwing.

While on the subject of humour in dogs, the secretary of the National Canine Defence League, whose clinics handle over 70,000 sick animals every year, says that it is extraordinary how quickly all dogs realise that treatment is being given them—and often they will pay visits of courtesy to the clinics on their own account, showing every sign of appreciation and pleasure, for some time after they have been made fit and well again.

One little dog whose appearance belies its real character is the Pomeranian—which, although it may not look it, is a tough little animal.

The "Pom" is one of the little dogs that form the canine stock-in-trade of the cartoonist. When a picture of a dog is needed as one of the accessories of pampered luxury, the Pom is often chosen as the model.

Then authentic Pomeranian is far removed from the Pom of the comic pictures. Despite the fact that show specimens of to-day average about 4 lbs. in weight they are real dogs in every sense of the word. It was a representative of the breed who recently fell 700 feet over the Spitzkogel in the Austrian Alps, and remained in a ravine for 30 hours until rescued by a hutman who was lowered by a rope. The dog was unharmed by the fall and exposure. The breed is extraordinarily hardy, and it is quite common for a litter of puppies a few days old to be installed in outdoor, unwarmed kennels in winter with their mother, and suffer no harm. In fact they seem to thrive on this sort of thing.

The Pom is a really tough little dog. The Collie or sheep-dog is, to some discerning eyes, the comeliest

WHEN SERVING SALADS

The average salad consists of lettuce leaves, slices of tomatoes, and chopped spring onions. There may or may not be—probably not—sliced hard-boiled eggs.

Sometimes the lettuce is chopped and then, if it is left for any length of time, it quickly turns black. There are lots more things that may be added to a salad than just these ingredients.

For instance, you may like cucumber and radishes, or beetroot, or cold cooked vegetables, such as peas, beans, carrots or potatoes cut into dice. Experiment with your salads; blend vegetables cooked and raw together, and try different kinds of dressings. Mix fruit and vegetables together, such as grapefruit and lettuce and chopped nuts. Serve salads combined with cold cooked fish other than salmon.

Try sardine salad, or salad with cream cheese, or chicken mayonnaise. Whatever you do, see that your salad ingredients are really cold, the lettuce, etc., perfectly crisp. If you have a gas-operated refrigerator you will not need be told how easy it is to keep your vegetables, etc., beautifully fresh for days.

BANDITS—DODGE

"Your Money—And Your Trousers"

Bandits in Canada now force bank clerks to surrender not only money—but their trousers as well.

Over 2,500 dollars' worth of jewellery was stolen from a manufacturing jeweller at Montreal by this method.

of dogs. The variety that has outstripped all the others in popularity is, of course, the Rough, Conted Collie, but the others have their adherents. In addition to the Smooth variety there are the Border and the "Beardie" who although they have never figured on the show bench, are dogs of charm and the Beardie Collie has achieved the distinction of having a famous novel written by himself as the hero—none other than Alfred Ollivant's "Owd Bob."

BERNARD SHAW ON HYPOCRISY

Mr. Bernard Shaw, criticised English hypocrisy when he presided at a lecture given by Madame Levinskaya, the pianist, at the New Health Summer School at Malvern.

Commenting on Madame Levinskaya's address, which was "A New Technique of Living," Mr. Shaw said: "That does not concern me very much, because, as I am in my 79th year, it is rather late for me to get a new technique of living. I would have to acquire a new life before that would have any effect for me."

"But I would like to know how I should have lived. I am fairly convinced that I have not always been successful in finding out the right path, and, although it is too late, really, I should like to know what I ought to have done. There is still time for me to find salvation."

MAKES PEOPLE AWKWARD.

"In all questions of this kind you have to consider the physical fact that in English society everybody has grown up on hypocrisy. That is what makes people so extremely awkward in many ways. It is not a mere physical awkwardness; but very few people know how to behave nicely and tactfully and get through life."

"The reason is owing to this general demand for hypocrisy. If you are a female you are taught to behave like a lady, and you know perfectly well you are not a lady, but merely a human being. And if you are a man you are taught not to be a man, but a gentleman. There is a very great difference between an ordinary human and a gentleman."

"I have long been convinced that the notion that the brain is in your head is a complete mistake. I have known men who have brains in their fingers and none in their heads whatever, in the ordinary sense. You often find an extraordinarily clever and inventive mechanic who, if you asked him to describe what he does, is pitifully helpless. A brain is a thing that is all over you. A football player's brains are in his shins or in his toes."

BASIS OF NEW TECHNIQUE.

Madame Levinskaya said that the basis of her new technique of living was to teach people how to co-ordinate their muscular actions with their brain. "So few people," she said, "have any sort of co-ordination in their ordinary everyday actions. I once told a well-known doctor that 90 per cent. of the English people have no co-ordination. He replied, 'I entirely disagree. Ninety-eight per cent. have no co-ordination.'"

Madame Levinskaya said that if one sat on a seaside promenade and watched people going by, one would be impressed by the awkward way most people walked. "Many men walk either too stiffly or with a slouch, while most women walk either with a mincing little step or with a sort of coquettish swagger."

GERMAN OFFER TO LANCASHIRENOT ACCEPTABLE TO SPINNERS

London, Sept. 13.

Lancashire spinners meeting in Manchester passed a resolution recording that they were not in favour of accepting the German proposal with regard to outstanding German debts. The meeting advised that a special committee be set up to consider the question.

It is understood that under the terms of the offer before the meeting, German cotton yarn importers offered to pay their old debts, amounting to £267,000, in twelve monthly instalments, and earlier if the British Empire would increase its taking of German hosiery and gloves. They further asked for a resumption of yarn supplies, new business to be done at six months' credit instead of the usual thirty days' credit.—British Wireless.

HUANG FU TO RESUME
DUTIESSatisfactory Agreement
With Ariyoshi

Shanghai, Sept. 13.

General Huang Fu, Chairman of the Peking Political Council, is proceeding to Nanking this morning by special train after staying here for a fortnight. It is officially stated that he will return to Peking after spending several days in the capital.

It is believed that his decision to resume his official duties at Peking is the result of his satisfactory arrangements reached with Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, in respect of Sino-Japanese diplomatic issues concerning North China.

Mr. Arino, Secretary of the Japanese Legation, however, denied that Mr. Ariyoshi's recent visit to Mr. Wang Ching-wei at Nanking had any connection with North China problems.—Central News.

NIGERIA LOAN
CONVERSIONTERMS OF ISSUE, ANNOUNCED

London, Sept. 13.

Special interest attaches to the announcement of the terms of issue of the £4,188,000 3 per cent. inscribed stock of the Government of Nigeria, for which underwriting arrangements were made to-day.

The issue is being made to replace £4,045,573 of Southern Nigeria 3½ per cent. stock 1930/35, which is the first 3½ per cent. loan to be the subject of conversion into stock bearing a smaller rate of interest.

The new loan is to be issued at 97½, redeemable in 1955. Lists for cash applications open and close on September 17, but the conversion lists will be opened immediately and closed on September 28.—British Wireless.

Mr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance, called on General Huang Fu last night and thoroughly discussed the financial situation in North China.—Reuter.

ST. PAUL'S IN ITS OLD GLORYInterior Of Dome Being Restored

A new grandeur has come to St. Paul's.

The work of cleaning the inside of the great dome is rapidly nearing completion.

Already the interior of the cathedral seems transformed; when the last of the ugly tubular scaffolding is removed the vast cupola will be revealed in all its pristine whiteness.

The dust and grime which have percolated into the building and contaminated the white stonework of the dome throughout two centuries have been removed.

The faded gilding at the base of the pilasters around the Whispering Gallery and the dulled background of the niches in which stone saints stand have been restored to their former glory with gold-leaf.

Canon Alexander, treasurer of St. Paul's, who has been so largely the driving force behind the restoration and beautifying of the cathedral during the past few years, told a Daily Mail reporter:

BEAUTY OF WREN'S DAY.

"The renovation of the nave and the transepts, already carried out, worked wonders, but with the dome restored to its old-time whiteness the cathedral will resume the beauty and magnificence of Sir Christopher Wren's day.

"Attempts were made in the past to redecorate the dome, but they succeeded only in leaving ugly patches beside the newness. It took modern methods to remove all the traces of the dirt and gases which have blackened the stone."

The topmost section of the dome bears fine frescoes of the life of St. Paul, wrought at the time of Wren by Sir James Thornhill, but long since blackened.

"Attempts to renew these pictures in the past were unsuccessful," said Canon Alexander. "We experimented with a newly devised method some weeks ago and, it having proved satisfactory, the final work on the dome, the restoration of Thornhill's work to its original state, will begin this month."

HELLO, JAPAN!

PHONE LINK WITH LONDON

London, Sept. 10.

When the final telephonic link between Britain and Japan is completed within the next few weeks, London will be able to claim the distinction of being the world's chief "Hello centre". It will then be possible for King George's subjects to ring up the international exchange in London and ask to be put through to any one of 33 million out of the 35 million telephone subscribers in the world.

In fact, the only countries equipped with telephone systems with which there will be no direct connection will be China and Albania. The British Post office authorities are already experimenting over the possibility of connecting up London and Peking in the near future. They believe there are no serious technical difficulties to hinder this as they were able to speak with a cruising liner in the harbour at Shanghai recently.

Attempts have also been made to bring Albania into the international telephone family, though so far without success.

LONDON'S ROLE.

London's "hello girls" at the international exchange are responsible for putting through not only all the calls from Great Britain but in addition every call from continental Europe to North and South America, Asia, Australia and South Africa. Every time Cape Town rings up Cairo, Bombay or New York it has to put in the call through London.

Before the war the only countries with which Great Britain had telephonic communication were France and Belgium, with an erratic service to Sweden.

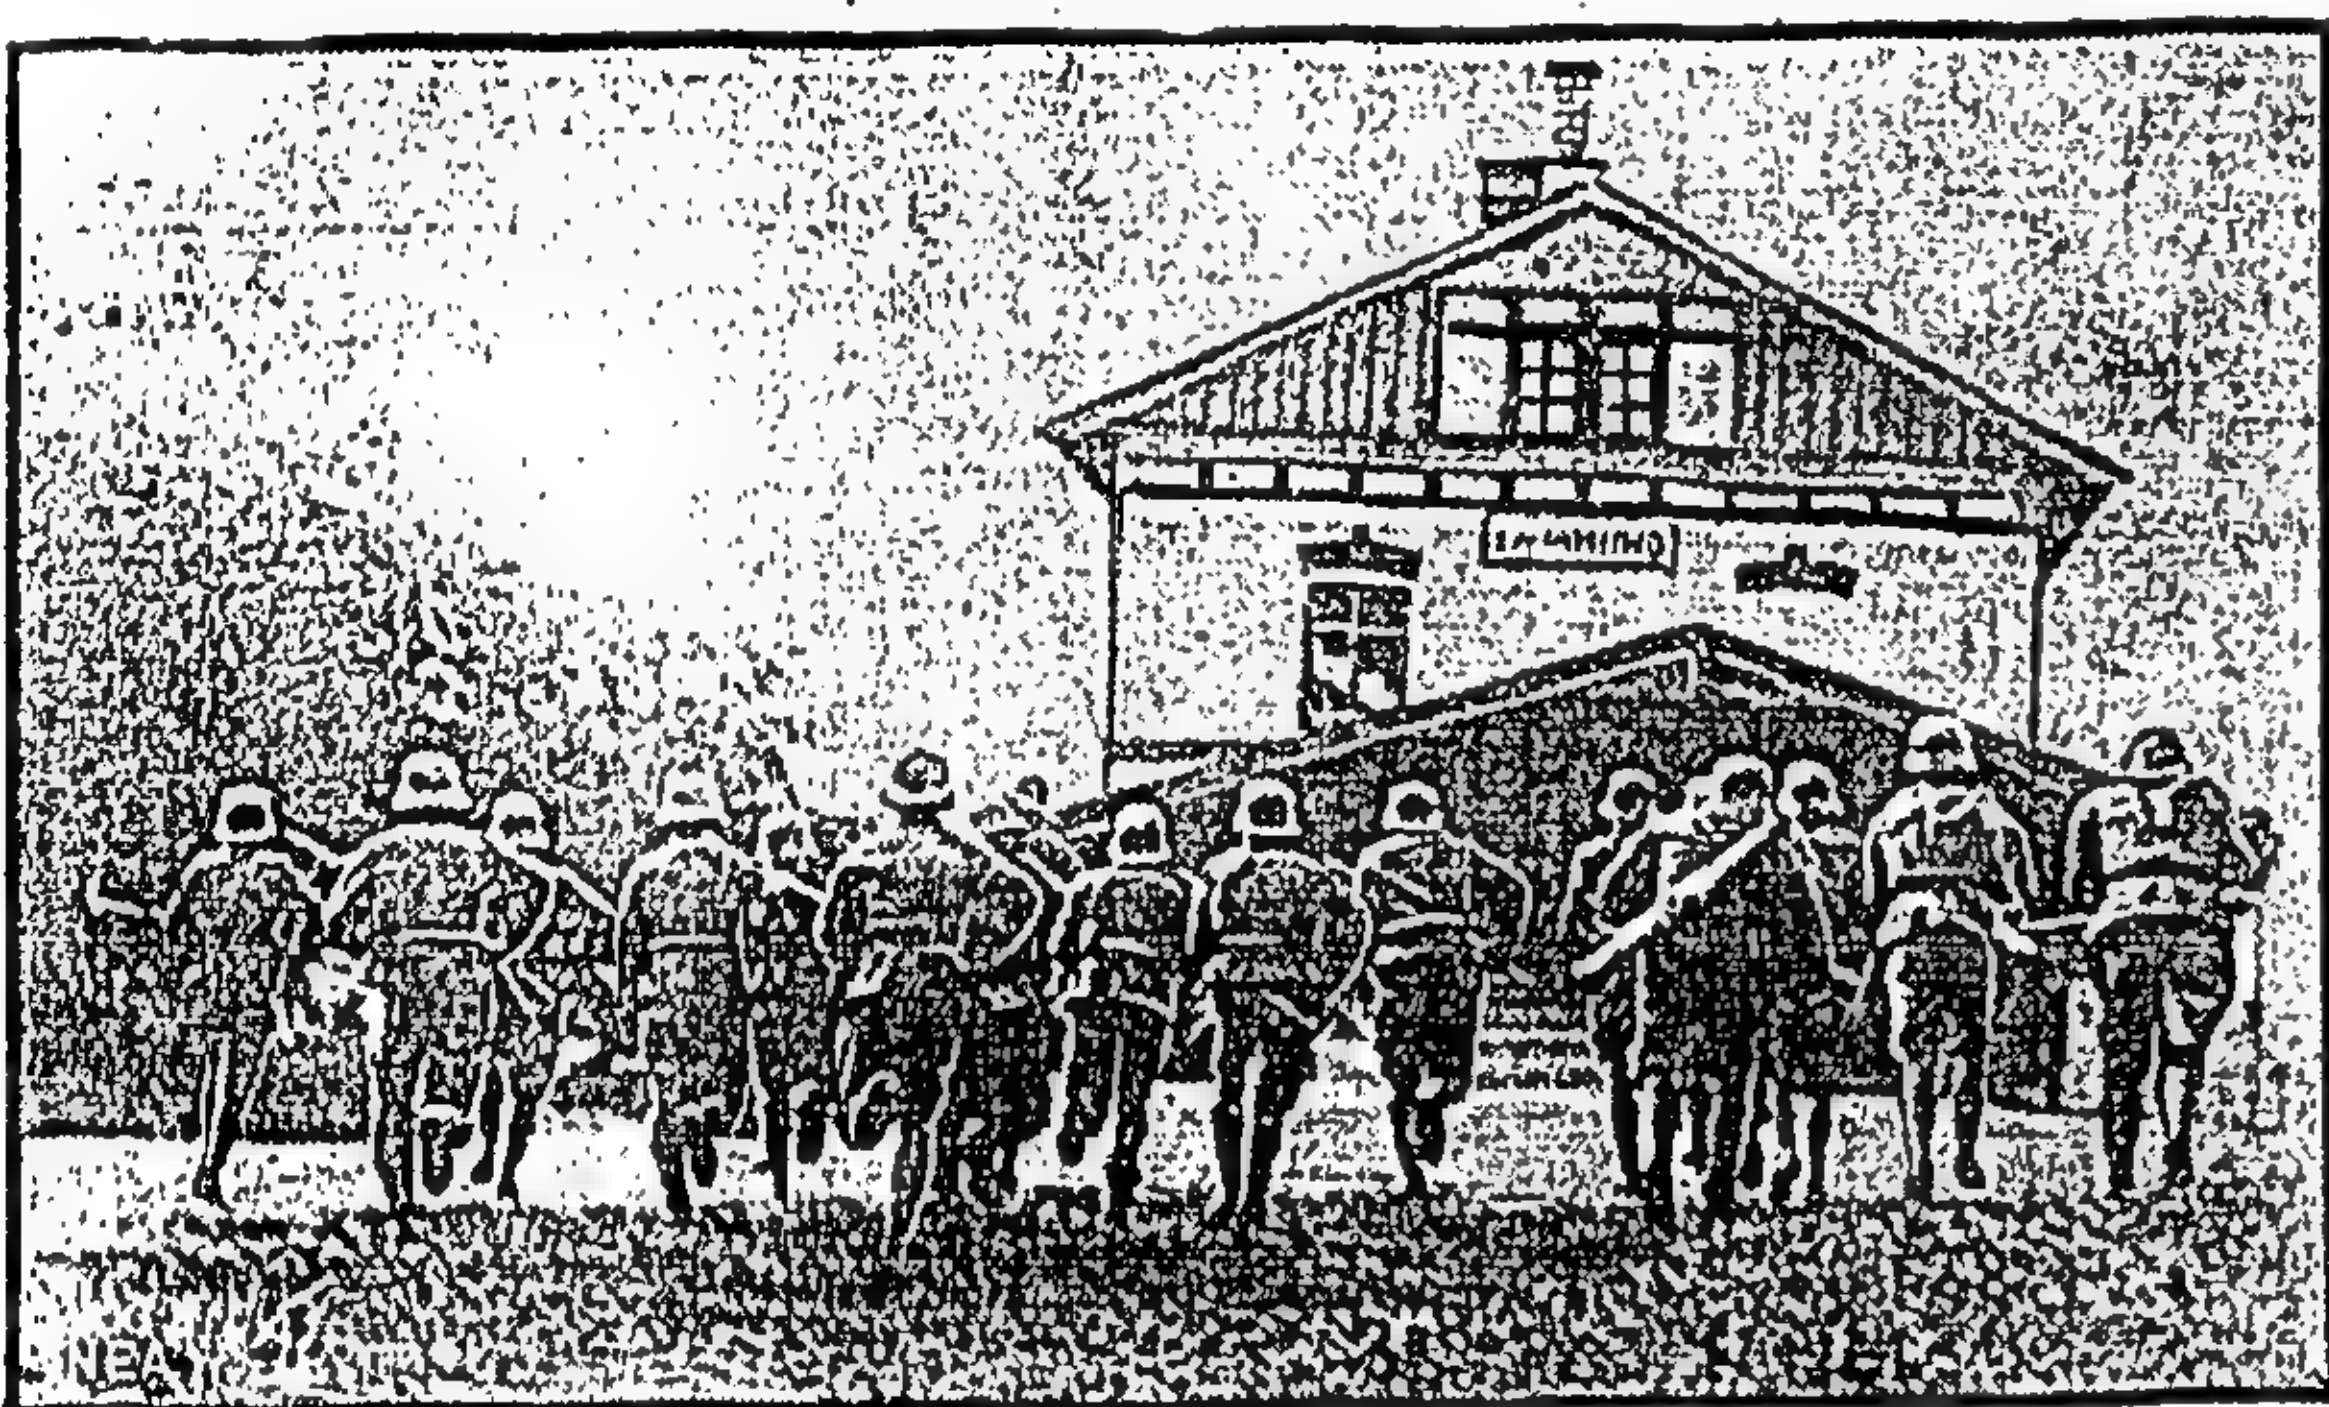

Owing to the immense volume of calls cleared through London daily and nightly there is a staff of 200 operators at the international telephone exchange at Carter Lane, in London. All the operators speak fluent French and German, the international telephonic languages of the Continent. Some speak several other languages as well.—United Press.

SURGERY HERO'S
POSTGave Minor An Artificial Windpipe

Mr. G. Grey Turner, Professor of Surgery in the University of Durham, has been appointed to the University Chair of Surgery (British Post-Graduate Medical School), at London University.

It was Professor Turner who last year achieved a surgical marvel by saving the life of a minor suffering from a cancer growth in the windpipe.

An operation was performed and the man's windpipe removed. Dr. Turner constructed a tube through which food could pass from the skin of the chest. By plastic operations this tube was first connected with the upper end of the gullet through a hole in the neck, and secondly with the stomach.

BOY MEMBER OF
"CRIME CLUB"Hanged After Reading
Sensational Books

At an inquest at Dover on the body of Samuel George Alfred McGhie, 16, of Clarendon Street, Dover, it was stated that the lad, who was found hanging, was a member of a "crime club" attached to a library from which he borrowed books.

Police-constable Horn said that McGhie's 11-year-old sister told him that her brother was behind the cupboard door in his bedroom. The witness found the boy hanging with a piece of thin rope round his neck, one end being fastened over the top of the door and held by the door, which stopped it from slipping. In the living room he found a novel about nightmares.

Inspector R. E. Pay, of the Dover police, stated that he had examined the book and read a story. This told of ghost stories, and ended by the occupier of the house hanging himself. Another story told of a case of an untimely death.

The witness added that he found that the boy was a member of what was known as a "crime club" attached to a library from which he borrowed books. There were indications on the top of the cupboard door, suggesting that experiments had been made as to what weight a rope would carry and its effect on the experimenter. The books with which the boy had been filling his mind confirmed his (the inspector's) theory that he had been experimenting, and the conditions suggested sudden impulse rather than premeditation.

Dr. H. Stevens said that the inspector's theory was borne out by his own examination. He had attended McGhie for small ailments, and found him a normal, healthy, nice lad.

Edmund Horace Marsh, manager of the grocery stores where McGhie worked as an assistant, said that he was one of the smartest lads he had.

The Deputy Coroner (Mr. R. E. Pain) said that the boy was apparently obsessed with the books he had read, and particularly with the incident of the man hanging himself. He had possibly tried to experiment on the same lines. The jury might have some observations to make for the public good as to the too-easy way in which boys could get hold of the type of books referred to.

40 HOURS WEEK NO
CUREOpposed by League of Industry

WOMEN'S RIGHT

"Not only do we not recommend, but rather we earnestly oppose, the introduction of a 40 hours week as a means of increasing employment."

Such is the conclusion of a committee appointed by the League of Industry to investigate schemes for the encouragement of employment.

The report, which is to be presented to the Malvern Conference of the League in September, states that the replies to a questionnaire addressed to federations and branches of the League throughout the country proved that there was no general demand for a reduction of the working week as a means of spreading employment.

In all replies from branches where members were engaged in production for export it was emphatically stated that the increased cost per unit of output, due to a reduction in the working week without reduction of wages, could not be recovered in prices, and any attempt to recover it would lose the market and cause unemployment.

With regard to other proposals for bringing unemployed into work, the Committee reject the suggestion that workers over 65 or 60 "should be compulsorily evicted from industry in order that their places may be filled by workers under these ages." To be fair to such workers the inducement to withdraw, by way of pensions, would have to be fairly close up to the wages which they could earn, and the cost would be far beyond the capacity of industry to carry under present circumstances.

The proposal that pensioners should not be allowed to be employed in industry is also rejected, with

the proviso that it is undesirable that a pensioner should have a job for which a non-pensioner is equally fitted, mainly because his pension enables him to accept a lower wage.

WOMEN IN INDUSTRY.

The general eviction of women from industry in order to replace them by men is not favourably received by the Committee. "It is an impossible inconsistency," the Committee report, "to say that women are capable of taking part in the Government of the country, but are not capable of taking part in its economic life as industrial workers."

It is easy to say that a woman's place is in the home, but there are, unfortunately, far more spinsters of a marriageable age than there are bachelors to marry them.

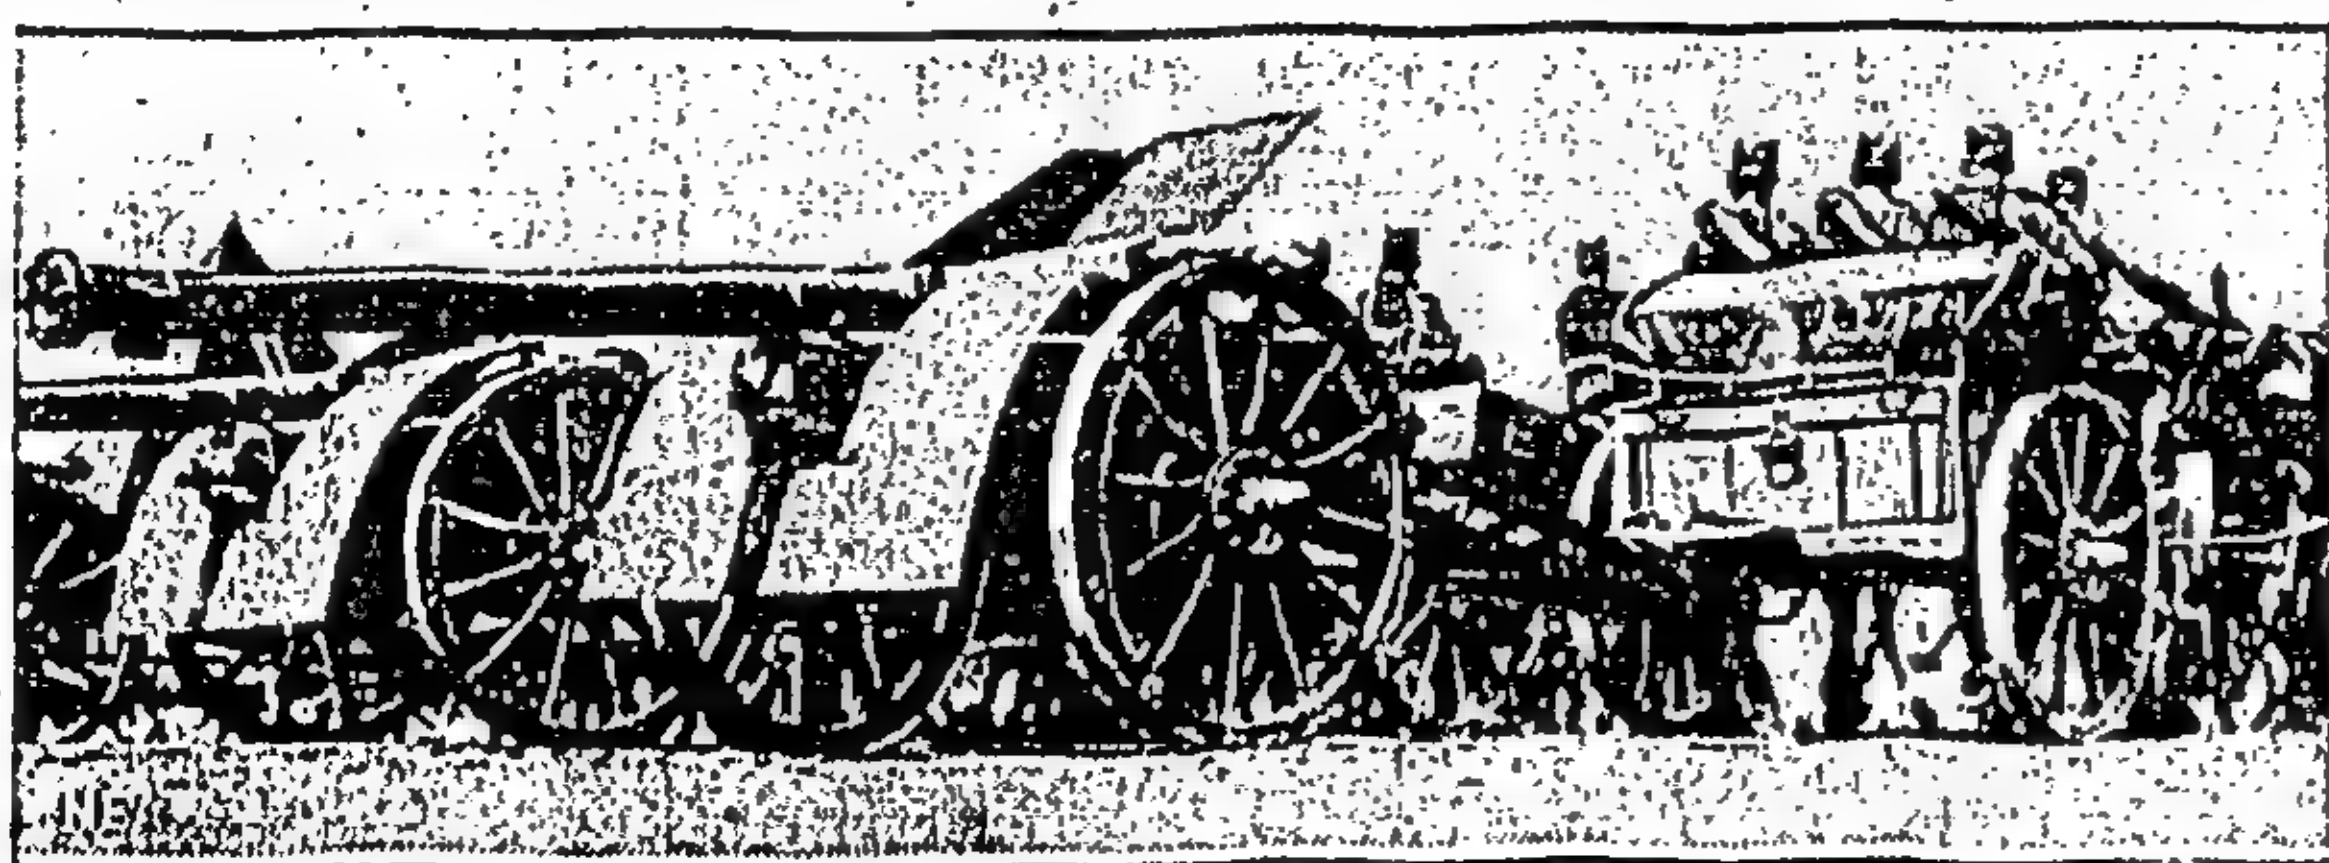

The Committee, however, recommend the raising of the school leaving age to 15.

The only field in which the Committee support any large increase in Government-directed activities is in respect of housing and slum clearance.

The Committee deny that technological improvements create unemployment. "Improved processes," they say, "do not in the long run cause less employment, but create more."

The Committee recommend that "when and where a competent group of expert industrialists can give full proof that they can undertake what, having regard solely to business considerations, are likely to be profitable extensions of existing works or the profitable establishment of new works, the bringing together of idle capital and idle labour is a task in which the Government could, and should, take its part."

Expressing approval of the policy of the Government in relation to the building of the Cunarder 534, the committee contend that one of the things which the Government can do is to raise money on the lowest possible terms. They hold the view that if similar cases arise the precedent of 534 should be followed.

OUR NECKWEAR
IS REALLY
ECONOMICAL

A Tie for which you pay a small price is not necessarily cheap, in value received. It may bear the undesirable look of cheapness when worn.

A good Tie, while it may cost more, will be altogether more pleasing in service—and it will always look what it is.

Such a conspicuous part of your attire suggests the wisdom of selecting a quality that compliments both your taste and your knowledge of values.

We consider we have the best show of Ties in Hong Kong. Why not call and see them?

THREE FILIPINOS AND A PERUVIAN

Expulsion orders against three Filipinos, Cledaldo Arrieta, Mauro Doyan and Memiso Cristobal, were made by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, when they appeared on remand on charges of having entered the Colony without valid passports.

Detective Sergeant Mottram said arrangements had been made, and defendants were leaving on the Empress of Japan for Manila to-night. Mr. Hamilton warned the defendants that if they returned again, they would get three months' imprisonment.

PERUVIAN CHARGED.

Antonio Martos, a Peruvian, was also charged with having entered the Colony without a valid passport, and was remanded for 24 hours on the application of Detective Sergeant Mottram.

It was stated that defendant was arrested in Kowloon on Wednesday. He was wandering about. He first stated he had been in the Colony a few days, but just before coming to Court said he had been in the Colony for a long while.

The defendant was remanded for enquiries.

THEFT ADMITTED

BRASS STOLEN FROM KOWLOON DOCKYARD

Leung Tai-hon, 18, unemployed, and Ma Nam, 20, a boiler-maker, pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing two parcels of brass ferrules from the Kowloon Dockyard, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning before Mr. E. I. Wyne-Jones. The first defendant, who had served six weeks' hard labour last year, was sentenced to two months' hard labour and the second defendant was sentenced to six weeks.

Sergeant Marriott of the Kowloon Dock Police appeared for the prosecution and said that, on September 13, at 10.30 a.m., the two defendants were searched by an Indian watchman at Kowloon Dockyard and the parcels of brass ferrules were found in their possession.

A Portuguese lad, named Ricardo Gomes, aged six years, was sent to the Kowloon Hospital for treatment yesterday, after he had been bitten by a dog at No. 4 Fuk Lo Chuen. The animal was taken to Ma Tau Kok for the usual period of observation.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MARKET DULL YESTERDAY

The following reports on the New York stock market have been received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's markets: Stocks were very dull and aimless. Prices were generally downward, especially steel issues, due to the feeling that the U.S. Steel Corporation might eliminate its preferred dividend. In the bonds market, the feature of the day was the sharp recovery in United States Government issues, due to the fact that the Treasury had closed its books on the conversion offer, indicating that the Government financing had been most successful. Other bonds were highly erratic. The wheat market was steady.

S. C. & F. New York office cables: The stock market moved meaninglessly in a dull session. General news is colourless and uninspiring, aside from more favourable dividend declarations. Washington is urging speedier commercial loans and more leniency in the existing loans. The weakness of Federal bonds continues to be an unsettling factor. The Treasury reports a successful Certificate exchange, but note refunding is indicated to be slow. Textile manufacturers have declined arbitration, rejecting the Labour Union's proposals. The Manhattan Railway Company reports a loss of $1,249,000 for the year ended June 30th, against a loss of $731,000 the previous year. The Federal Reserve Board's August Department Store sales index was 79, against 73 in July. Business done: 420,000.

New York and Chicago commodity reports received through Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz: Cotton: White not aggressive, buyers and the Trade absorbed the heavy liquidation. The market displayed some impressive resistance at around the 13-cent level for December. The reported contemplated use of Federal troops in the strike area and the announcement that there will be no reduction in the Processing Tax were depressing features, but, with the Government loan of 12 cents in the interior available to farmers, heavy hedging is not expected at the present levels. The manufacturers' refusal of arbitrage in connection with the textile strike and the absence of other stimulating influences at the moment, is tending to restrict general buying. The market is facing a test of the resistance point of 13 cents for December.

Grains: The market was two-sided. Continued liquidation was well absorbed and not much decline in prices is anticipated.

Sugar: The market is still awaiting Cuban developments.

Rubber: The market was easier, in sympathy with London and may drift lower, pending a new incentive. There was some good buying on declines.

THE BUDGET

Public reaction to the Colony's
Budget will probably be that the Government has erred, if at all,
on the side of caution. At the
same time, with conditions as
likely be a general disposition to
agree that it is far better to take
the safe course than to embark
on a policy of adventure. An
analysis of the Colonial Secre-
tary's speech makes it clear that,
whilst following a cautious line,
the Government has refused to be stampeded into rash economies. First impressions, when
the total sum asked for was dis-
closed, were that a decrease of
some seven million dollars in
expenditure was contemplated;
actually, however, the outgoings
are only a few lakhs less than
those originally estimated for
the current year. The confusion
was created by the fact that the Government did not, as is
customary, release with the Budget resolution the Bill setting
forth details of the appropriations. These would have dis-
closed the fact that the amount
of $26,000,000 did not include
any provision for Military Contribution or charges on account
of Public Debt. Taken in the
main, the Budget can be described as somewhat colourless, since
no new works of any large
dimensions are to be undertaken,
whilst some undertakings which
are patently necessary, but
scarcely urgent, have to await
the dawn of better times. The Government policy in this connection is hardly open to serious
criticism, and it is at any rate
to the credit of the authorities
that they are disposed at the
moment to utilise some of the
spare funds in the direction of effecting much-needed, if only
partial, expansion of the Colony's
health and medical services
rather than to increase what
may be termed the ordinary
amenities of life. It is gratifying to see that the Trade School
project is to be taken in hand,
since it should prove one of the
most beneficial institutions in
the Colony. In this connection,
Building Contractors' Association for agreeing to erect the
building at cost, thus saving the
Government a considerable sum.
Regret will be felt that no pro-
vision is to be made for the
greatly-needed Mental Hospital.
As is known, the site originally
prepared for the Central British
School was alienated for the purpose of the asylum. Not
only, however, has it not so far

NOTES OF THE DAY

RUSSIA AND I.L.O.

An interesting problem is likely
to arise if the difficulties at Geneva
are overcome and Russia becomes a
member of the League of Nations.
Membership of the League carries
with it automatically membership
of the League's International
Labour Organisation. It is possible for a country to join the
I.L.O. without joining the League
—which is the reason why it was
possible to invite the United States of America to join—but it
is not possible for a country to join
the League without being a member of the I.L.O. The composition
of the Conference and Governing Body of the I.L.O. differs radically
from that of the Assembly and Council. In the latter, of course,
there are only Government delegates, but in the former there are
employers' and workers' delegates
as well. That is Russia's little
problem.

INTERESTING ISSUE

What will the Workers' Republic
decide to do about this difficult
and delicate matter? There are no employers in Russia as we understand the term. There are Trade Unions which could be invited to send representatives and,
of course, the Government can send
delegates. Theoretically there is no distinction between the workers' and the Government delegates as
the Government is composed of
Soviets or Councils. If Russia did
not wish to admit of any distinction between the workers and the Government it could appoint either
only a Government delegate or only
a workers' delegate. Or alternatively, it could overcome the difficulty by remaining a 'sleeping
member' of the Organisation and
sending no representatives at all.

Unfortunately, Mr. de Valera's
surprise attack at Geneva has
accomplished its purpose only too
well and the question now is
whether the U.S.S.R. will become a
member of the League at all.
The loss will be incalculable if M.
Litvinoff disappears in umbrage
and with everybody's nerves so
sensitive this is not an unlikely
happening. The irony of the
imbroglio lies in the fact that it
arose out of a procedure designed
to prevent a last-minute swing.
The Powers laid themselves open
to the attack by trying to wriggle
the invitation through after secret
conferences on the best method of
working the "wangle." At least
that is how Mr. de Valera saw the
situation, and doubtless his views
are widely shared. Nevertheless,
the Irish Free State delegate's
chief disservice was to draw a re-herring across the trail. A solution may be found if the Assembly
make up their minds whether Russia's entry into the League is
desirable or not, and if they are
agreed that it is, to accept Sir
John Simon's dictum that the
quickest way is the best.

been utilised, but additional
expenditure and delay have in
consequence been incurred in
respect of the school. The continued holding up of the Mental Hospital scheme illustrates the
point that the diversion of the
school site from its original purpose was never justified. Coming to the financial aspect of the Budget, the position disclosed
cannot be described as in any sense giving cause for pessimism. It is true that the credit
balance at the end of the year is
likely to decline to just over
twelve and a half millions, and
that there are anticipations of a
further reduction to $10,700,000
by the end of 1935. But this is largely explained by the fact that the Government is not hesitating to make use of some of its surplus funds—a policy which we think might have been carried even a little further without serious danger to the Colony's finances. In this connection it must be remembered
that the Government is basing
the Budget on a 1s. 4d. dollar,
and although it is quite within
the realms of possibility that
present exchange rates may
decline, there is also the other
possibility that they may keep
well above the level named, in
which event considerable savings on sterling commitments
will be experienced. Whilst
further analysis of the Budget
may disclose details in which
the Government plans might
have been improved upon, in the
main the principles upon which
they are based call for little
serious adverse comment.
Whilst marking time for the
moment, the Colony is being
administered on lines which
should permit of a ready response to the first sign of better
conditions.

WILL JAPAN START A NAVAL RACE?

By CAPT. DUDLEY W. KNOX

WILL Japan's expanding am-
bitions unravel the fabric of
naval limitation already woven?
That is a question which must be
answered within the next year,
when the existing treaties fixing
America, Britain and Japan, and
in part for France and Italy, are
scheduled for renewal or revision
by an international conference.

At least in principle, the United States and Great Britain stand together in their attitude toward
future naval limitation. They believe in a renewal of the main
features of the existing treaties,
and any substantial difference of
viewpoint is confined to comparatively incidental questions. How each nation's naval plan is to be cut
is a small matter contrasted with
the fundamental demand which Nippon's spokesmen have advanced
of increasing the size of her whole
navy relative to the other countries.

Japanese officials have freely
announced that nothing less than
parity with the strongest naval
powers would be acceptable to
them in the future. Reduced to
cold figures, this would mean an
above the present size of Japan's Navy, while Britain and America
stood still.

Is Japan's participation in naval
limitation worth such a price, or
even worth any material rise in
her relative position? Would it
be better to accept the risk of her
unrestrained building, and to
meet it on a competitive basis until
her state of mind is less excited?
Until then, would it be wiser to
postpone the limitation conference
rather than face almost certain
disagreement now, together with
the consequent ill-feeling? Such
is the puzzle which disturbs official
Washington and London to-day,
and which provides the motive for
the preparatory conversations now
being held in the hope of narrow-
ing the margin of difference to a
point where final agreement will
be reasonably indicated.

Japan already has been very
generously dealt with in naval
conferences. The security of her
home waters, including her vital
communications with the Asiatic
mainland, was amply assured by
the Washington Treaty of 1922.
Then at the London Conference of 1930 she succeeded in gaining an increase of nearly 8 per cent in
her assigned proportion of tonnage.

At the new conference, scheduled for 1935, she will come with
a distinct bargaining advantage
flowing from the possession of a completely built-up "Twenty Navy,"
compared with a substantial
American deficiency in this respect. On the other hand, England
will also have a navy of full treaty
strength, according to recent
official declaration in Parliament,
and Japan's case for increased
tonnage relative to Britain will therefore not be good. A further
element of great importance, tend-
ing to turn Britain against any Japanese naval increase, is the
current commercial rivalry between these two countries. Here-
in may lie a refuge for the United States. Since parity of navies between America and Britain is

conceded, if Japan fails to gain
relatively to England she cannot
gain relatively to the United States.

Hence Japan's quest for more
naval power cannot find much
sympathy either in London or
Washington, and the best chance
of reaching a three-party agreement appears to lie in a substantial moderation of Japan's position. In this respect the most
hopeful note which has been
sounded for several years was the
statement by the very influential Prince Konoys just before sailing
from Japan on his current visit
to the United States. He declared
publicly then that Japan would not
demand actual parity with the
navies of America and Britain,
but merely what he termed "defen-
defined by Navy Minister Osumi
as a fleet strong enough to repel
any invasion of far-eastern waters,
but too weak to attack the coasts
of the United States or Britain.

Coming from such a source—
Prince Konoys is president of the House of Peers and has the confidence of all political parties—
the moderation of Japanese demands on the eve of the discussions in London has to be regarded
as significant of Japanese willingness to be guided by realities in
the diplomatic negotiations now in progress.

Strict application of the defensive parity principle, which was a
basis for negotiations both at Washington and London, would
not now result in any increase,
but rather a reduction, of Japan's
strength in ships compared with Britain and America, because Japan already possesses super-
defensive parity.

The proposal for freedom to
transfer tonnage allowances from
one class of ships to another also
is not strictly a novelty. Carried
to an extreme, this is the French
"global" plan, which would remove
restriction on the numbers of any
type of ship so long as a total
tonnage for an entire navy was not
exceeded. The principal objection
to such a method of limitation is
the danger of secrecy in naval
building, through which one nation
might gain a "surprise" advantage
over another, and the consequent
danger of creating war-breeding
superiorities.

Nevertheless, in recognition of
geographical and other differences
between nations which speak for
some latitude of choice as to the
types of ships best suited to individual needs, the London Treaty
permits an exchange between de-
stroyer and six-inch-gun-cruiser
tonnage, up to a limit of 10 per cent of the allowances in these categories. Moreover, the United States was standing for the same
policy at Geneva in 1927 and London in 1930; when seeking the
right to build all of her allowed
cruisers of the eight-inch-gun type,
rather than having to include some
six-inch gunners.

It would therefore appear that
in this phase of naval limitation
may lie the necessary compromise
to prevent a deadlock. The cold
realities of national needs, undoubtedly bar both America and Britain from seriously considering
any increase in Japan's proportion
of total naval tonnage compared
with their own. But Japan's desire for more elasticity in the
method of limitation, by permit-
ting a greater measure of sub-
stitution of one type of ship for
another in order to compensate for
differences of fundamental circumstances, is within reason.
While this so-called "global"
method would defeat the basic
purpose of limitation if carried
to an extreme, nevertheless a
moderate adjustment of this nature to satisfy all countries ought

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

WE are writing this with
one hand, having had
the other badly injured
when we threw the bomb at
the Chairman of the Y.M.C.A. meeting. The
meeting discussed food and
other things.

Which reminds us that
our assistant mail-opener
brought to us yesterday a
letter enquiring what we
knew about breakfasts.

Now, anyone who thinks they
can fool us with a question like
that has never read her "Who's Who." We know everything
there is to be known about break-
fasts, and a few things that
shouldn't be known.

The word "breakfast" comes
from the original "break fast," as
used by Voce, O'Reilly, Larwood
and other bowlers. There is no
national British breakfast, unless
you count a brandy and soda and
an aspirin tablet as breakfast.

In America they toy with a
grape-fruit, rusks, and ice water, or
something like that.

In most of the books I've read
about the jolly old country house
parties in England, one wanders
down to breakfast at any old time
during the day, and one spongers
a devilled kidney here, a slab of
bacon there, an armful of toast,
perhaps a handful of marmalade,
and there you are.

Now, breakfast at our place is
different to any breakfast in any
other place. Everybody gets up
and hates everything solidly for
about twenty minutes, by which
time breakfast is ready. Then you sit down and say, "Eggs! I'm sick
of eggs!"

Then the wife of your bosom
says, "Put that paper down! How
would you get on at the Hongkong
Hotel if you propped your paper
fast?"

"Pickles!" you retort, sneeringly.
"Who ever heard of pickles on a
breakfast table? That bottle of
pickles has been put on this table
ever since we've been married, and
nobody has ever touched the
thing. I suppose you regard it as
an ornament?"

You go on from there until the
point when you leave the flat after
front door.

Then, of course, there is the business girl's breakfast. This
consists of two measured mouth-
fuls of tea and half a piece of
toast.

Newspaper reporters' breakfasts
consist mostly of a large drink of
water out of the jug on the wash-
stand. Occasionally they are able
to scrounge a bit of potato chips
at the Hotel the previous night.
George, the celebrated and almost
notorious writer who tries to be
humorous on Monday, Tuesday,
Wednesday and Thursday lived
nearly on potato chips and
counter lunches for twelve years
before he came to hero. He ran out of hotels at Home; that's why
he came to Hongkong.

We ourselves always like to get
home in time for breakfast. We
find it a great saving to stay out
all night... All we have to do
is warm our dinner up, and
there's our breakfast. On other
occasions we find that one good
look at a breakfast is quite
sufficient for us.

Wives should be very kind and
tactful to their husbands about
breakfast time. They should get
the breakfast ready, put it on the
table, inform the husband, and
then go away and hide.

The correct time to come out of
hiding is when he starts bellowing,
"Where did you put my hat! Good
Lord, a man can't put a thing down
in this confounded place without
she moves it. Isn't there a blasted
clean handkerchief in the house?
What's the time? Where's the
HANDKERCHIEF!"

Then when you've found every-
thing for him and done practically
everything except wash him, he
collects all the matches in the
house, including those near the gas
and stamps off muttering that he
knows he's going to be late.

That's what breakfast does to a
man.

It ought to be prohibited.

Britain from seriously considering
any increase in Japan's proportion
of total naval tonnage compared
with their own. But Japan's desire for more elasticity in the
method of limitation, by permit-
ting a greater measure of sub-
stitution of one type of ship for
another in order to compensate for
differences of fundamental circumstances, is within reason.
While this so-called "global"
method would defeat the basic
purpose of limitation if carried
to an extreme, nevertheless a
moderate adjustment of this nature to satisfy all countries ought
not to be difficult.

"Look at her pretending she doesn't know any of these old men."

STRIKE CRISIS THREAT

REGULAR TROOPS STANDING BY

RHODE ISLAND VIOLENCE

New York, Sept. 14. The probability that Federal troops will be called out in Rhode Island to meet the menace of striking textile workers, who have been rioting and causing serious disturbances, has been admitted.

President Roosevelt has acceded to the request made by Governor Green of Rhode Island, who called the President by telephone, and to use Federal troops in the state if the strike violence became any more serious.

In the meantime, the Governor has ordered the arrest of every known Communist in the state, with the object of preventing subversive agitation.

EXPORT DUTY ON NATIVE RUBBER

D. E. I. ACTION IN THE CONTROL PLAN

Batavia, Sept. 14. It is announced that the export duty on native-grown rubber, as from October 1, has been fixed at 20 guilders per 100 kilograms on dry rubber. Duties for other assortments range from 15 to 18.50 guilders.

The dry rubber group consists of blankets, bark, crepe and all similar sheets manufactured by machinery not driven manually.

The former system of reducing other rubber to a dry weight basis for duty purposes has been terminated. All rubber not classifiable as dry rubber will now be levied as "other assortments."—Reuter.

STRANGE NORTH CHINA REPORT

MANCHUKUO RECRUITING OFFICES

Tientsin, Sept. 13. It is officially stated that two Manchukuo recruiting offices were discovered to-day in the vicinity of Tientsin and that twenty-six inmates were arrested. They are being taken to Tientsin for trial. Eleven other persons, alleged to have connection with a revolutionary movement in the Chuhua District, Luanlung, organised by Manchukuo agents, were arrested in course of a raid and are also being taken to Tientsin under orders from General Yu Hsueh-chung, Governor of Heipei.—Central News.

COSTLY BUS RIDE

TICKETS CHEAPER THAN COURT BAIL

"It would be cheaper to have bought a ticket than to pay the bail," said Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning when he overstayed the bail of $20, of Billy Bennidetto, a student, when he failed to appear in answer to a charge for not paying the legal fare on Kowloon bus No. 129 yesterday.

Sub-Inspector W. Mair appearing for the prosecution said that defendant lived at 424, Prince Edward Road, third floor, which was only a short distance from the school and that his mother did not think it far enough to buy him a bus ticket. He also said that he thought it was merely a schoolboy prank.

GRAFT IN JAPAN. FORMER MINISTER FOR RAILWAYS INDICTED

Tokyo, Sept. 13. Mr. Chujo Mitsuchi, former Minister for Railways, has been indicted for perjury in connection with the Kuroda graft scandal which led to the downfall of the Saito Cabinet.—Reuter.

Appearing before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, Kung Chi, 25 years of age, a shoemaker, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempting to pass a cake containing opium to a prisoner in police custody, yesterday at 2.30 p.m., and was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour.

"Endavour," sailed for England by its owner, Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, and the Rainbow.

ENDEAVOUR'S FEAT.

Endavour is regarded by many yachtsmen as the best contender England has sent across the Atlantic. It made the crossing from Gosport to Newport in almost exactly sixteen days, nearly seven days faster than that of the Lipton yacht, Shamrock V in 1930 when it set a record of 23 days for the 4,000 miles.

The crossing was made easily and the yacht did not pitch and roll as did Shamrock V or take the heavy pounding the latter boat received.

SEVEN RACES

Seven races are scheduled around the triangular 30-mile course on Block Island Sound with four victories required. Races will be sailed every day except Sunday, although at the conclusion of one day's race a skipper may ask for a day's delay before the next one is held. If a boat is disabled during a race it must continue as best possible.

The cup was last contested for in 1930 when the late Sir Thomas Lipton made the last of his five efforts that cost him something like £2,000,000 although he never won the cup. In that year the winning yacht was Enterprise, which showed its stern to Shamrock V in four straight races.

HIGHLY CONFIDENT.

The fact that the cup is in America's possession places the burden of challenging upon other nations—which always has been England—and makes it necessary to build a yacht not only for speed but sturdy enough to stand the rigorous Atlantic crossing.

Added to that is the fact that practically all yachting in England is done in heavy water and strong winds, while Long Island Sound, in which lies Block Island Sound, is added to light air currents. Those factors have aided the United States in keeping the America's cup for so long, although the America won it in 1851 in British waters.

Endavour, however, made a splendid Atlantic crossing and has been built with an eye to the light currents to be found in America, and Mr. Sopwith, the owner-skipper, is highly confident.

NEW BRITISH DESTROYER

London, Sept. 13.

The destroyer Electra left the Tyne to-day for her acceptance trials and afterwards proceeded to Portsmouth.

Of eight destroyers ordered under the 1931 programme, the Electra is the second to be completed.—British Wireless.

OF VICTORY.

ENDEAVOUR FEATURED.

One important feature of the Endavour is its 168-foot steel mast, lightly built and designed to catch every bit of air, no matter how light. It has a steel rod shrouds like those on the American boats Rainbow and Westamoc but the rods have been tested to 100 English tons strength more than those of the American yachts. The mast, of tensile steel, is only 22 inches in diameter.

Rainbow's mast is 30 inches in diameter but Enterprise was only 18 inches. For support of Endavour's mast knife-edged channels, that will offer little resistance to the water when the yacht is heeled, extend beyond the sides of the hull and give more leverage for the taut pull of shrouds. Curved plates were welded together and strengthened with light steel diaphragms to form the mast. Nothing has been said to indicate it, but observers believe Mr. Sopwith is planning a great deal of faith in this feature.

The English challenger is built a great deal like the Rainbow; both have long sharp bows and other almost identical features of design but where Rainbow is almost flat on deck, Endavour has a sharp curve down from amidships to the nose.

AMATEUR CREW.

A combined amateur and professional crew of 16 men will sail the Endavour and a professional crew will man the American entry. The officers reported upon the arrival of Endavour that the combination got along very well during the crossing and they add that the crew is "one of the best ever, since our trial sails in American waters."

The yacht is equipped with every modern sailing device, including a speed indicator, an instrument for registering wind force and labour saving capstans.

The American entry is reported in the best of shape and experts are looking forward to one of the greatest series of races ever staged for the America's cup.—United Press and Reuter.

EUROPEAN TRAFFIC OFFENDERS

SEVERAL APPEAR IN COURT

Several European motorists figured in the traffic summonses before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning. G. W. K. Crawford, driver of motor cycle No. 63, was summoned for not having full control of his machine, by having his hands off the handle bars, while driving in Yee Wo Street on September 14.

Traffic-Sergeant Clark said defendant was driving at about 25 miles an hour, and his hands were off the bars. He was adjusting his coat.

Defendant pleaded technically guilty. He said his coat was open and he had taken his hands off the bars to fasten the buttons. The whole incident took about three seconds. There was no swerve whatever, and he could stop his machine without holding the bars.

Mr. Hamilton administered a caution, remarking that the practice was risky.

F. R. Reck, driver of private car No. 2687, was summoned for having left his car unattended in Queen's Road, Central, near the Asiatic Building, for half an hour, and was cautioned, as it was his first offence.

Reck told the Court that his wife had gone to see a doctor to undergo an operation to her foot, and he had to stand by because she fainted. He did not expect the operation to take such a long while.

LADY CAUTIONED.

Mrs. F. H. E. Skyrme was summoned for driving private car No. 1937 in Eastern Street, which was a road closed to motor-traffic, and was cautioned.

Mrs. Skyrme said she came from the top of Eastern Street, and did not see any notice until she got to the bottom, when she could not possibly turn back. She came from the hospital, and turned to the right.

Inspector Alexander said there was no notice at the top of Eastern Street because there was a slight dip there, and neither was there any notice in Hospital Road. They wanted to avoid putting up too many signs.

Mr. Hamilton remarked that they should have the signs, and said he would like to bring the attention of motorists to schedule D of the Motor Regulations, where all prohibited roads were given.

DANGEROUS DRIVING.

Leung Che-son, driver of private car No. 3169, was fined $15 for dangerous driving in Island Road.

Traffic Sergeant Clark said defendant overtook another car on a bend just below Wong Nei Chong Gap.

Mr. Hamilton remarked that he should not have passed there, as it was one of the most dangerous places in the Colony.

Chan Chan, driver of private car No. 1298, was also fined $15 for dangerous driving at the same place. He too was alleged to have overtaken another car.

Cheung Loi, driver of motor van No. 2382, was fined $10 for driving at an excessive speed. Sergeant Youe stated that defendant drove from the West Point Police station to the Ko Shing Theatre at a speed of 20 miles.

Pleading guilty to a charge of having 33 tins of opium in her possession, Li Sap, 45 years of age, a Chinese woman, was fined $1,000 with the alternative of five months' hard labour, by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

SILVER EXPORTS

CHINA'S ORDER TO EFFECT RESTRICTION

London, Sept. 13. Eastern banking circles do not anticipate an important limitation of activities of the foreign banks in Shanghai, as a result of the Chinese Government order restricting exchange operations, declares The Times.

Some doubts, however, exist concerning the extent to which the regulations are enforceable, particularly in view of the extrajurisdictional rights, though the foreign banks naturally desire to co-operate with the Government in carrying out any necessary plans for protecting Chinese currency and exchange.

It is thought that if the exchange business is suspended some of the smaller banks will have difficulty in carrying out their exchange transactions, which have been involved by sales of silver in London.

Taking all things into account, London City's view is that the order may constitute an indirect form of embargo or, at least, a definite discouragement of heavy silver exports.—Reuter.

Further Restriction.

Shanghai, Sept. 13. According to finance experts speculation in foreign exchanges appear not to be entirely eliminated in spite of the order issued early this week by Dr. H. H. Kung, Finance Minister.

This is indicated by the fact that silver's price has shown no signs of decline in the local Exchange.

It is believed that the Chinese authorities are contemplating now measures to give fuller effect to the order forbidding speculation in foreign exchanges.—Central News Agency.

CHINA'S VIOLATION OF DEMILITARISED ZONE

Dairen, Sept. 13. Colonel Takashi Sakai, the new Chief of Staff of the Japanese forces in North China, arriving here this morning, declared that Japan cannot overlook the recent violations of the demilitarised zone by the Chinese.

He characterised the rumour that was circulating in North China to the effect that something grave was at present looming, as mere hallucination.—Reuter.

RACING SEASON OUTLOOK

NO "BUMPER" PROMISED

ADVISABILITY OF ENCOURAGING THE SMALL OWNER

(By "Captain Foster")

This time next week I shall have something to say regarding the prospects of the ponies engaged in the different races which will come up for decision tomorrow week, the commencement of our Autumn racing season, and, at the same time, I hope to have a little to say concerning the new subscription griffins for 1935. I gather that eighty "subs" have been subscribed for but that, as a number of subscribers wish to be relieved of their obligations in this respect, the Stewards of the Hongkong Jockey Club have re-opened the Subscription List, which will now close at noon on the day of the draw.

THEY SAY

THAT Bag & Baggie has been destroyed.
THAT Loo Reidy deserves very high praise for curing his leg ailments previously.
THAT the pony would still be winning good races had he remained in his possession.
THAT New Star is going to be hard 'un to beat this Autumn.

INDISPOSITION OF MR. HARRIMAN

The numerous friends of Mr. Gilbert Harriman will be pleased to hear that he is progressing favourably after his recent illness. I am, however, exceedingly sorry to hear that he will not be seen in the saddle for some little time, if at all this Autumn.

I gather that two of his mounts for the September 22nd Meeting have been placed. Mr. Davis will have the riding of The Bodega and Mr. Caplan will be piloting The Tiger.

There will be no race for Sadko at that Meeting, so the question of a rider for him has not cropped up. To my mind, Sadko always shows his best running with Mr.

The History Of Hyperion: Wonder Horse

THE GREAT LINE FOUNDED BY GONDOLETTE

The time has arrived for another good horse with "classic" credentials to leave the racetrack for the Stud, avers an article in Sporting Life. This is Hyperion, whose history is connected with a romance of the Turf.

Among the yearlings listed by the late Mr. Waring from his Beenhams House Stud, to be sold by Messrs. Tattersall at Ascot during the race-week of 1903 there was a filly by Lord One from Donoghue that went to Major Edwards for 75g.

At the time this looked about her value as except that her sire—who was then standing at a fee of 10g.—had a line of Pilgrimage, there was nothing remarkable in her breeding. The following season, prior to which she had been named Gondolette, she won a "seller" at Brighton, and a little later scored in a similar event at Epsom.

She was then sold to Lord Westbury for 800g.

BOUGHT BY LORD WAVERTREE.

This owner raced her without much success until, at the end of her three-year-old career, she was sold at the Newmarket Second October Sales to Lord Waverley then Col. Hall Walker—for 360g.

Another season without a bracket terminated her racing career, and she was sent to the Tully Stud, in Ireland, where she bred Good Sport, who was third in Aboyne's Derby, and Lot Fly, and was then catalogued carrying a foal by the Derby winner, Minoru, at the December Sales of

The trade depression, which is making itself felt in the Colony, is doubtless responsible for the withdrawal from ownership. It would therefore seem that the 1935 racing season is not going to be a "bumper" one, especially in Derby griffin events. I do not wish to be unduly pessimistic but I cannot see our Derby ponies totalling over 50, which is a large drop in numbers compared with importations in the last three to four years. Prices of ponies should go down in sympathy and I shall be pleased to see this as it may have the tendency of bringing in new and/or small owners when these feel that they can purchase a live candidate for Derby honours for a sum in the vicinity of about $1,200.

ENCOURAGE SMALL OWNERS.

I feel that this is a good price and one that should leave a fair margin of profit to the Dealers. Prices at Shanghai, which is the Newmarket in the East, do not, I think, average this figure, while $1,200 would be considered a high price at ports such as Tientsin, Tsingtao and Hankow.

I fully realize that racing in the main is a rich man's hobby, and Owners are at liberty to pay what they like for their griffins, but I am concerned with the small owners who are after all perhaps the largest supporters of our racing. They should, in my opinion, be encouraged, as without their backing it would be a sad day for racing generally in the Colony. Take our C and D class races for instance; they are by far our most popular events, producing our largest fields and best finishes while our A class races—confined to our outstanding ponies—are usually very tame in comparison, and evince practically no public interest.

Harriman in the saddle and the combination of the two has produced some spectacular wins at the Valley, and thrilled scores of spectators.

MACAO RACE MEETING

Fine Day Of Sport

GOOD RIDING

(By "Captain Foster")

The Race Meeting at Macao was a decided success, the attendance being better than I expected, and the racing was distinctly good. The fields, although on the small side, which is only to be expected at this time of the year, produced some good finishes, especially in the Mong Ha Handicap (First Section), when Captain Jack Jordan on Festival Eve just got up to snatch a short head victory over Mr. Norman Deitz on Vago.

I was particularly impressed with the riding of Mr. Li Fuk-fai on Delightful Chance when finishing second to Sarabande, ridden by Mr. Ip Kuy-ying in the Aroia Preta Handicap. This Noisy appears to be very keen and is shaping nicely, so much so that I do not think it will be very long before he graduates from the Novices' class. So far he has only ridden half a dozen races at the Valley but, as his father (Mr. Li Shin-pang) owns the powerful "Soldier" stable, it will not be unreasonable to suppose that Mr. Li Fuk-fai will be having the riding of some of his good ponies this Autumn.

THE VETERANS DELIGHT.

The two veterans, Mr. Bob Charles and African Eve had no difficulty in winning the opening event (Mounted Troop Handicap) and they were much applauded when returning to the dismounting enclosure. The win was all the more meritorious as Mr. Charles was far from well and it was altogether most sporting of him to ride. African Eve has had a "leg" and his lameness alone put him in the first position. Pat (Trooper Browning) ran a thoroughly good mare, but I do think the Handicap was a little too drastic in asking her to shoulder 175 lbs!

I am afraid my fancy Fair View did not run up to expectations and I cannot help feeling that she could not possibly have been well within herself, her running from the jump off being so very disappointing. I had expected Gold Currency to show up prominently but I was not prepared to see such an easy win. Mr. Paul Botelho rode with good judgment.

Miss Joan Dowbiggin was given a hearty ovation after winning the Ladies race on Fi Fa, and the win was most popular. She is a very keen rider and it was nice to see her register a win. Miss Pam Scott Harston must have had a very hard ride on City of Shanghai as he is well known to be a pronounced slug. The two Fair girls rode the two "view" ponies, "Sen" and "Harbour", and very well too did they ride!

MR. DENIS HAZELL'S REVELATION

Football That Is Laced Before Inflation

Mr. Denis H. Hazell, Far Eastern Director of Messrs. William Sykes, Ltd., is back again in Hongkong, following a flying visit to England and a long business tour of Malaya.

He has brought back with him, not only vivid memories of two hours spent in the company of Don Bradman, but several hundred cricket bats, personally selected and signed by that cricket genius.

Nevertheless, the most interesting thing Mr. Hazell has brought with him is the new triple Seal valve football, which seems destined to create a sensation. Certainly it promises to fill a much felt want. Briefly the chief characteristic of this new football is that it is laced up before inflation, which not only does away with stray lace ends (the cause of many a cut face), but ensures a perfect shape.

The device by which this is achieved is ingenious, and the results entirely satisfactory. Mr. Hazell has also basketballs and rugby footballs, made under the same principle. To say the very least, this type of ball has the quality of being something entirely new.

Famous Davis Cup Incident Recalled

Calling foot-faults at match point has caused considerable comment this summer.

The most remarkable of these penalizations was recorded in 1922, during the Davis Cup tie between Australasia and Spain, played at the Germantown Cricket Club.

Australasia had won the first match and in the second Pat O'Hara Wood opposed Manuel Alonso, who was afterward to become the No. 2 ranking player of the United States. Pat led at two sets to one and 5-2 and 40-30 match point.

WHAT HAPPENED.

Determined to stake all on a service ace, Wood, having forced Alonso out of position with his first delivery (a fault) crashed over a fast service straight down the centre-line, which Alonso vainly strove to reach. In doing so, however, Wood's foot swung over the base-line and Paul Gibbons, the foot-fault judge, penalized him. The eye saw that the ear heard the call "foot fault," and the former registered more impressively than the latter. It seemed, therefore, all over. Wood and Alonso appeared to start toward each other to shake hands; Captain Patterson started to come over and congratulate Wood; and there was an instant of bewilderment while the gallery and everybody else strove to take it all in.

PERFECT ALONSO.

It was Alonso who occupied the centre of the stage, however, from this time on. He was dramatic, but not theatrical. "Hurry, hurry," he cried to the ball boys, while his hand, held out for the balls, was a mass of twitching fingers. At the end of each game he almost ran to take up his position and waited feverishly while Wood towelled himself or sipped his beverage. Back and forth behind the base-line he almost bounded, like a lion waiting for his prey. Yet there was the most perfect court conduct on his part. He played the game. He hurried himself, but he made not the slightest attempt to hurry Wood nor did he betray the slightest desire, while he waited, to hurry his opponent. He pulled up from 2-5 to 7-5 and ran straight to 3-0 and 6-1 in the fifth set.

FOOT-FAULT BOGEY

Will It Be Laid By New Methods

"Is the bogey of the foot-fault rule about to be laid?" asks Tennis Illustrated, and continues: Several members of the Umpires' Association consider that they have solved the difficulty of judging accurately whether a player swings a foot over the line when he hits the ball, which has always been the major problem of the foot-fault rule.

It has now been proved that by looking through a pair of opera or field glasses the wrong way round, the foot-fault judge sees the figure of the player, so much reduced that he can see the ball hit and also the baseline, at the same time. Clarity of vision is not dimmed by this device, which had unofficial trials during the Wightman Cup tie and the Wimbledon Championships.

LAWSON LITTLE THROUGH

Brooklyn, N.Y., Sept. 13.

Lawson Little, brilliant American golfer, who won the British Amateur championship this year with a record score, advanced to the semi-final of the American Amateur championship to-day.

He was joined by Reynold Smith, David Goldman and Don Armstrong. To-morrow, the four will play over 36 holes according to the following draw:

Reynold Smith v. David Goldman
Don Armstrong v. Lawson Little

The fifth round and quarter-finals were completed to-day. In the fifth round, David Goldman beat Fred Hass after a close match, while Chick Evans had an easy passage against Mark Stuart, finishing four up.

Lawson Little became dormy three against Harry Gandy, and clinched the issue by winning the next hole to take the match at 4 and 2.

TORRANCE BEATEN.

The big surprise of the fifth round was the elimination of T. A. Torrance, one of the best fancied candidates. He lost a keen contest with Edmund Driggs of New York by two up. The players were all square at the ninth, but Driggs forged ahead on the subsequent holes.

The draw for the quarter-finals found Goldman opposed to Driggs, Armstrong pitted against Evans, Lawson Little against Willie Turnesa and Reynold Smith against Ernest Pieper.

The sensation of this round was the defeat of Chick Evans, whose powerful play in the earlier stages had made him nearly as firm a favourite as Lawson Little.

Evans, however, fell a victim to Armstrong, who won by the surprisingly big margin of 4 and 3.

Goldman had another narrow shave, finishing but two up, but Little easily held his own against Turnesa, and finally won comfortably.

The keenest tie was that between Reynold Smith and Pieper, which went to the twenty-third hole before settlement. Smith then obtained the necessary hole for the match.

FULL RESULTS.

Full results as cabled by Reuter follow.

FIFTH ROUND.

D. Goldman beat Fred Hass 2 and 1
Chick Evans beat Mark Stuart 4 and 3
Lawson Little beat Harry Gandy 4 and 2
Edmund Driggs beat T. A. Torrance 2 up

QUARTER-FINALS.

Goldman beat Driggs 2 and 1
Don Armstrong beat Chick Evans 4 and 3
Lawson Little beat Willie Turnesa 3 and 2
Reynold Smith beat Ernest Pieper at 23rd.

"Stroking With 'Vinnie' Richards" is a praiseworthy little effort by the Dunlop Rubber Company to bring free to the public an analysis and explanation of the principle strokes in lawn tennis as developed, practised and advocated by Richards, one of the greatest of all players.

The leaflet is illustrated by Stills taken from a film demonstrating these strokes, and Vincent Richards' concise explanation of the technique behind each shot brings the strokes within immediate reach of the beginner.

INDIA MAY HAVE M.C.C. OF HER OWN

MOVEMENT TO FORM GOVERNING BODY OF CRICKET

India is to have an M.C.C. for itself. There are likely to be great changes shortly in the cricket organisations of this part of the Empire. India takes its cricket very seriously. It enters the scale of high politics.

Prince Behar, a member of one of its ruling families and himself a crack cricketer, who now lives in London, is taking part in negotiations to reorganise his country's cricket.

He had a special talk with the Viceroy, Lord Willingdon, when he was in London on a visit. The idea of the prince and his colleagues is to set up a central governing organisation in India on the lines of the M.C.C.

Lord Willingdon was more than interested. He, too, is a keen cricketer. He has decided to sound the feeling for this suggestion when he returns to India.

Cricket at present in India is in pretty much the same position as it was in the early days in Australia. There are several small organisations, each at variance with its members and bickering among themselves. This makes the task of arranging Test matches doubly difficult.

"There is strong support in India for a body on the lines of the M.C.C.," Prince Behar said after he left the Viceroy.

"Lord Willingdon agreed with this. Our idea is to set up an M.C.C. of our own."

"Then we can set about arranging Test matches, not only with England, but with Australia, South Africa, and West Indies."

"People over here do not realise how much enthusiasm there is in India for good cricket. For one thing, it pays much better. There are extremely good gates, and very few professional players."

"Even so, we are up to Test standard. It will not be long before we are beating you at the game you gave us."

BEACH CLUB GIRL

By MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

BOOTS RAEBURN, 18 and pretty, belongs to the younger set of Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb. The Raeburns have had financial reverses. SYLVIA RIVERS, richest girl in town, is giving a party at the Yacht Club and Boots is invited because she is not invited. She accepts a last-minute invitation to a dinner to be given the same night as Sylvia's party by Mrs. WATERMAN, one of Larchmont's social arbiters.

Boots overheard her crowd laughing about her acceptance of the dinner invitation and is crushed by this unkindness. That night at the Yacht Club she meets HARDY WHITMORE, one of Sylvia's guests, and he urges her to come for a ride in his sailboat.

CHAPTER IV

At Sylvia's table the glasses were filled and emptied, and filled again. Great red roses in a crystal vase dropped in the heat and smoke and scattered their petals on the white cloth. Food cooled on the plates while girl and boy laughed, talked, danced and wandered back again.

Meanwhile, Hardy's absence did not go unnoticed. Patty's sharp eyes instantly caught it. Isabel was conscious of his departure and Sylvia herself, although apparently ignoring it, was perfectly aware of his defection.

One of the boys, with the male's delicious usual obtuseness, inquired casually, "Where's Hardy got to?" Isabel pressed her small slipper against his instep, signalling for silence. It did not matter, really, Isabel said to herself, annoyed. There were more than enough men to go around. Why did they always have to know to Sylvia—save her feelings? She would not admit, even privately, the hold that Sylvia had on the crowd.

Sylvia's parties, Sylvia's money and her big car and the orchids that she wore so unconsciously, impressed them. Some of them were in her debt. In a way, and had to curry favours.

Laddie's father worked for Mr. Rivers and when Patty's allowance fell short it was Sylvia who came forward. Isabel happened to know, and paid for luncheon tips, trips into the city, even silk stockings sometimes.

"As for me, I don't owe her anything," Isabel reflected; with satisfaction. Ah, but didn't she, really? Sylvia had made her accept that black chiffon dress when they were in the play together. Isabel had borrowed it to play Mrs. Hastings in "Not for a Day," up at the high school, and later Sylvia had said, with apparent carelessness, "I want you to keep it. No, but really, I mean it."

Isabel had been tempted beyond her strength. The black chiffon had made her creamy skin look creamier; it had brought out every single glint in her copper-coloured hair. It was the sophisticated sort of frock young girls dream about and their mothers refuse to buy for them.

So she had kept it. And she had found, after that, it was not so easy to be simple and natural with Sylvia. It was easier to fall in with her mood, play up to her, bite back the contradictions that rose to one's lips when Sylvia made one of her cool, outrageous, extravagant pronouncements.

Sylvia had not been able to buy Boots—had not, in very truth, tried. No, from the instant they had met, between the two girls it had been war—to the knife. And now (Isabel thought) Boots was committing the crowning crime of all, walking with Sylvia's man. At least, she supposed Hardy was with Boots. When last seen, his bright head had been bent over Boots' gilt one, their steps had melted together like so much liquid poetry. Boots, in her one pretty frock, Isabel said to herself loyally, was better than a dozen Sylvias.

If she weren't the hostess, Isabel reflected, they'd all be perfectly frank about it and say they wanted to stay and see the thing through. The party was as good as it had ever been, only Sylvia's long dark eyes were narrowed now, her mouth was set in a petulant line. Sylvia was very angry.

They gathered up their things; Sylvia's white and silver, Boots' frothy wrap, Patty's compact, Isabel's lipstick. It was late, Isabel thought. The older women had begun to look tired. And Boots Raeburn was not at Mrs. Waterman's table. Oh, well—just as Isabel skirted the musicians' dais, a shout went up out of doors. One of the many who always hung around the club—not exactly an attendant, just one of the "regulars" in blue jeans and a battered cap, went running down the pier. Isabel heard the words, "Man overboard." She ran, too. Everybody, it seemed, was on the pier now; butting and in frair frock, men in dinner clothes, their eyes searching the black horizon.

"Young fool!" she heard a white-haired, mustached man say, angrily. Then someone cried, "They've got him," and the words ran from mouth to mouth. Hardy... it was Hardy... and everyone knew he was a whiz with a sailboat. What could have happened? The night was calm, the sound was running smooth as black glass.

Isabel's heart began to beat very fast. She was fond of Boots—always had been. What if anything had happened to Boots? She had lost the others now: Sylvia and Patty and Laddie were nowhere to be seen. She tried to see over the shoulders of a tall man just in front of her and failed. Isabel was thoroughly frightened now. She pushed her way through the crowd, back toward the club-house. Some of the younger people were making a great joke of the whole thing.

"Well, if they will get aloofed!" she heard a high, giddy voice saying, merrily. Isabel was angry. Imagine anyone making fun of anything so terribly serious.

you couldn't do much with a long dress wound around you. Foolish, foolish, unhappy Boots! Isabel felt somehow responsible for her. She had seen hurt and bewilderment in the girl's eyes that night, as she danced by. It was the fault of all of them.

"I can't—can't bear it," Isabel sobbed soundlessly to herself, huddled against some Hawthorn bushes in the bank of shrubbery surrounding the house.

Suddenly she heard her name called in the stillness. "Isabel! Isabel!" She trembled all over. Was it true, then, that ghosts came back to haunt you? It was a ghostly voice, faint and far away, and yet it was Boots' voice, surely!

"What?" she quavered bravely. "Who is it?" She peered into the blackness, unable to distinguish a thing.

"It's me—Boots," said the voice steadily. "I'm here in the summer house."

Isabel demolished the space between the shrubbery and the old, rustic, embowered summer house in two jumps. Yes, it was Boots Raeburn, her ghost who sat huddled in the shadowing.

"What on earth's the matter?" Isabel's teeth were chattering. She felt as though she were going to be sick.

"There's such a racket down on the pier," Boots said in a fretful voice. "I didn't know what to do. I've lost my shoes."

"Lost your shoes?" The full tide of relief flowed over Isabel. She reached out a tentative hand, gripping her friend's shoulder. "You're not wet," she said with apparent irrelevance.

"No, of course not. Why should I be? I can't think what's wrong with everyone to-night," Boots complained. "The whole world seems to have gone crazy or something. Everyone ranting and screaming down on the pier like a crowd of Fijis."

"And now the thing is, I must get home—but how?" Boots demanded, unheeding. "That foolish boy! When I wouldn't go sailing with him he picked me up and ran and my shoes dropped off... and I got away from him and dashed and hid here. He went off in the boat by himself but I couldn't find my shoes anywhere and I guess I had a good cry—don't tell anyone I'm such a fool, lizzy darling, and I must have been asleep..."

The relief of hearing her say the commonplace words, plaintively, complainingly, was exquisite. Isabel hugged her.

"I hope he's all right," Boots contributed, "although he did act terribly and I was frightened for a minute, and Mrs. Waterman will never forgive me, that's certain. I can't explain..."

"The thing now," Isabel said, "is to get you home. Oh, if I'd only brought the roadster! I wanted to, but Laddie offered to drive me..."

She considered the situation a moment, her bright eyes thoughtful. "Look," she offered, in the silence. "I'll tell Mrs. Waterman you were taken ill—that you went off to the dressing room and didn't feel equal to coming back. That crab-meat at supper," and Isabel viciously, "was enough to set anybody off."

Boots said no more. "No," she said, "no, she'd never believe it." Boots said despondently, "It sounds silly. If I had my shoes I'd go in and explain to her myself—told the whole story. But I can't go back in there like this."

Isabel shrugged her shoulders. "I suppose you can't."

"Could you get Laddie or someone to drive over into..."

Isabel looked at her watch. "It's 11:30. I must go. I'll be home in half an hour."

"I'll be home in half an hour," Boots said, looking at her watch. "It's 11:30. I must go. I'll be home in half an hour."

"I'll be home in half an hour," Boots said, looking at her watch. "It's 11:30. I must go. I'll be home in half an hour."

They were both fined $25 by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

Mr. W. H. On looking into the third class waiting room he saw the defendants fighting with complainant. He immediately went in and one man struggled with him. A policeman then came upon the scene and the defendants were taken to the Water Police station.

ARMS FOUND ON FISHING JUNK

THREE MUSKETS AMONG WEAPONS FOUND

Ho Pak, 27 years of age, master of fishing junk No. 3388 HW, appeared before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, on a charge of having in his possession three muskets and one single barrel gun without a permit from the Inspector General of Police.

Defendant said that the arms originally belonged to his brother, but were transferred to his junk after his brother's junk had been wrecked in May, and as the guns were useless he did not have them transferred to his licence.

Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones cautioned the defendant and ordered the confiscation of the arms.

The Empress of Japan is due at Lyceum from Shanghai at 3 p.m. to-day, and will later berth at Kowloon. She sails for Manila at 4 a.m. to-morrow.

Tientsin, Sept. 13. A petition has been addressed to the Executive Yuan at Nanking complaining against the Kailan Administration, which, they allege, has not kept its promise to apportion them a fair share of profits.—Central News.

SOVIET AND RAILWAY CONTROVERSY

Harbin, Sept. 14. It is learned in reliable circles that the Soviet authorities are inclined to renew their efforts at settling the C.E.R. crisis by peaceful means, despite the failure of their protests against the mass arrest of Soviet employees of the C.E.R.

As a first step toward opening negotiations with the Manchukuo-Japanese authorities, a number of high Soviet officials in the C.E.R. Administration are expected to be replaced by new appointees.—Central News.
